An Uprising Feared.

NOGAIES, A. T. September 24.—It is reported here to-night that the San Carlos Indians have gone on the war path. The number is not stated, but dispatches indicate all the Indians on the reservation. There are five thousand bucks on the reservation, and should all break out they will make lively times in this section. Troops stationed here have been placed in position for ready action.

TUCSON, September 24.—The most intense excitement prevailed in this city all afternoon over the reported outbreak of the San Carlos Apache Indians. A courier arrived at Pantano about noon to-day, notifying all the settlers in the valley that two bands had left the reservation and were marching south. This is supposed to be the result of the killing of the murderer of Horton. Esthimizin's band will undoubtedly join forces with the San Carlos Apaches, which would make a force of nearly 200 well-armed and equipped hostiles. No news has been received either at Benson or Wilcox as yet. Many of the inhabitants of the valley do not believe this outbreak is so serious as reported, but having had experience heretofore they dread anything of the kind, and messages have been sent in all directions notifying the people to gather up all their stock.

HIS RESTING PLACE.

The Deceased Governor Permanently Buried.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—The remains of Governer Bartlett were removed this afternoon from their temporary resting place in Mrs. Latham's vault at Laurel Hill Cemetery, and were placed in a permanent grave in Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland. The removal was made quietly, and the only persons present besides the undertaker were Columbus Bartlett and Arthur Rogers.

THE GOVERNOR'S GENEROSITY.

Governor Bartlett's will has not yet been filed for probate, but a sufficient inventory has been made to show that the estate is worth about $10,000. This has been distributed to relatives and friends in numerous bequests. To Mrs. Mann, with whom he boarded thirty-seven years, he leaves a farm in Santa Cruz county. It belonged to George Mel, who married a daughter of Mrs. Mann, but was encumbered with a mortgage. This mortgage was about to be foreclosed when the Governor paid it off, advancing Mel, in addition, $3000 with which to make improvements. Although the Governor took a deed to the property, he did so as a mere matter of form, allowing Mel to retain complete control of it, with the understanding that he was to pay back the money at his own convenience. On his death-bed the Governor bequeathed the property to Mr. Mel's mother-in-law. The remainder of the estate is left to various members of the Govsrnor's family, none of whom are wealthy. Governor Bartlett was worth $40,000 less when he died than twenty years ago. This was uot due to business losses, but to constantly helping friends and relatives.

AN ARIZONA FUED.

How the Desperadoes Dispose of Each Other.

PRESCOTT, A. T., September 24.—Under Sheriff Waddell has received word from the Tonto Basin that a fight occurred there on the 18th. Thomas Graham, Joseph Ellingwood and a man named Middleton were killed on the Graham side, and George Newton and James Tewksbury on the Tewksbury side. The Graham party ambushed near John Tewksbury's house and found Tewksbury on guard. When the Graham party was discovered, both commenced firing. John Tewksbury, who was recently ambushed and killed, was found ten days later. Sheriff Mulvenon, three days after the fight reported that Lemis Packen, of Graham's party, was missing.

THE MANIPULATORS.

Suspicions That They Are Not Acting Squarely.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—Petitions were filed in the Superior Court to-day alleging that William Dresbach and John Rosenfeld have not taken true steps to pay their debts, and asking that all previous proceedings be stayed until the present matter is determined. The petitions are signed by various creditors of the insolvent wheat brokers, including the Stockton Milling Company, M. Adler, John Laws, A. L. Whitney & Co. and L. M. Heinman.

THAT EMBRACERY CASE.

Prominent Politicians Accused of Conspiracy.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—In an affidavit filed yesterday by Stewart Menzies, foreman of the Grand Jury, in making application for a search warrant to obtain certain documents in a house in Chinatown, it was set forth that it was thought by deponent that the papers would prove that Christopher Buckley, Jere. Driscoll, Joe Cochrane and H. H. Lowenthal had entered into an agreement by which they were to secure the acquital of Fong Ching, alias "Little Pete," by bribing the jury. Menzies appeared before Justice Boland to-day to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for refusing to deliver the papers on a writ of replevin. The hearing was postponed until Monday.

BUCKLEY'S DENIAL.

Christopher A. Buckley stated in an interview regarding the affidavit filed by Foreman Menzies of the Grand Jury: "I think the whole thing is the outcome of political animosity on the part of Menzies and other parties, and I have been threatened with a similar exposé some time ago. All I can say is that the allegations contained in Menzies' affidavit are totally false as far as I am concerned. I have never sent a telegram or attached a signature to any receipt or document in connection with the 'Little Pete' case, and none can be produced."

SACRAMENTO NOTES.

The New Major-General—A Desperate Celestial.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.

Early this morning W. P. Peterson was awakened by the rattle of a gold watchchain on a chair near his bed, and saw a China cook trying to steal it. Peterson jumped up and gave chase, but the burglar escaped. The Chinaman cut a man named Mills, who tried to stop him, on the wrist. There was money and jewelry in the room valued at $1300.

A BAD GANG.

The city is full of thieves. Last night Joseph Zucker was robbed by a masked man of $100 and a watch. Thos. L. Rode had his pocket picked in a crowd. Dr. Cutter lost a case of instruments stolen from his buggy in broad daylight, and a room in the Ingleman House was dispoiled of a suit of clothes and $40.

OREGON'S OUTLOOK.

A Glowing Tribute by Senator Stanford.

PORTLAND, Or., September 24.—A reception was tendered to Senator Stanford and party at Masonic Hall this evening. The large building was literally packed with ladies and gentlemen. Senator Stanford was escorted to the stage by Donald Macley, President of the Portland Board of Trade, amidst much applause. Hon. George H. Williams introduced the Senator and delivered an address of welcome. He briefly reviewed the personal career of Senator Stanford, referred to his long and remarkable connection with the Central Pacific railroad, his very prominent connection with all the great interests of California, and concluded with paying a glowing tribute to many generous charities bestowed by Stanford. His addresss was frequently applauded.

Senator Stanford responded briefly, giving his impressions of Oregon. He paid a handsome compliment to the State, and said its resources were boundless and its future possibilities great. All that was required to build up a rich and prosperous commonwealth here was enterprise and the use of its natural resources. It rested, he said, with the people themselves. At the close of his address hundreds came forward and warmly greeted the Senator.

TROUBLE FEARED.

A Derelict United States Army Officer.

FLORENCE, A. T., September 24.—Sheriff Fryer returned from Dudleyville to-day with six Apaches of Eskimizin's band, held for resisting an officer. They are all wanted for cattle and horse stealing, and had gone to the reservation. Lieut. Watson of San Carlos, promised Fryer to have Eskiminzin give up the men wanted, but the evidence shows that Watson told the Chief to leave for the reservation. It is thought that Watson was intoxicated. When the posse went to Eskiminzin's camp to take the six prisoners they found it deserted. They followed the trail till near dark, leading to the reservation, and they returned. All but four of the posse are still at Dudleyville, expecting a retaliatory raid on the settlers by Eskiminzin's band, reinforced from the reservation.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.]

The Cholera Quarantine.

NEW YORK, September 24.—J. T Kerle, general agent of the Faure line, said this morning he had given orders for three days' provisions to be sent to the Hoffman and Swinburne Islands, where passengers of the Alesia which brought cholera to this country, are being kept. He was of the opinion that the passengers would have to be quarantined for eight or ten days, and that after that time there need be no fear of further infection.

FATAL RESULTS ANTICIPATED

Three of the cases, those of Cormeci Cardier and Griglielis Helwig and his four-year-old child, will probably prove fatal. The others have more or less chance of recovery. The balance of the passengers and crew, with the exception of three cabin passengers, numbering 551, are under supervision at Hoffman's Island, at the expense of the steamship company. Should no new cases occur, the quarantine will be raised in eight or ten days.

The Chief Justice writes that proceedure in these cases is being generally criticised by the attorneys regarding its legality.

SPRECKELS' PLANS.

Rumored Combination With the A., T. and S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—John D. Spreckels has returned from a trip to San Diego. A statement is made that he has formed an agreement with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad providing for a through express from San Diego to New York in four days. The train is to carry passengers and mail through with but few stops, and the Oceanic Company's steamers, if pushed, will cross the Pacific from San Diego to Sydney, stopping at Auckland, in seventeen or eighteen days. The total time from Sydney to Liverpool will be reduced to twenty-eight days. Sprecke1s, it is said, is looking to a combination of the Oceanic Company and the International Company, running steamers from San Diego to the Mexican coast and the Del Campo line. He has not yet marked out details of his scheme, but when he goes to Australia next month he will be able to inform the Colonial Legislature what mail facilities the Oceanic Company, as well as the other lines, will be able to offer.

KASSON'S KICK.

How the Interstate Commission's Hotel Bill was Paid.

NEW YORK, September 24.—In the Tribune this morning was a communication to the effect that while investigating the Central Pacific Railroad Company at San Francisco, the Pacific Railroad Commission borrowed money of the investigated company to pay its hotel bill and get out of town. The writer of the communication thought the story should be denied.

"It can't be denied," said Commissioner Littler, at this morning's session, "because it's true. We did borrow $4000 of the Central Pacific for that purpose. We thought that nobody was more beholden to the Government than this road. Within an hour after we had borrowed the money we received notice from the Secretary of the Treasury that money had been placed to our credit, and we paid the loan. The next day a letter was read from Congressman Kasson of Iowa, objecting to the reported language in one of the Huntington letters, in which he (Kasson) is spoken of as 'an able fellow on whom we never lost any money.' He says he desired the commission to probe the matter to the bottom to ascertain if he had ever been paid anything by the Central Pacific Company or Huntington. The commission placed the letter on record, together with a statement that there was nothing before the commission to cause an implication or suggestion that Kasson had ever received any money on account of the Central Pacific road or for any other purpose." As there was no further public business before the commission, it was adjourned till Wednesday.

ATCHISON'S ADVANCE.

The New Line Inaugurated by that System.

SANTA ANA. September 24.—The first rail was laid to-day on the Los Angeles, Santa Ana and San Diego road. This branch of the Atchison system will run from Santa Ana for the Riverside branch, for San Bernardino and East, as well as San Diego. The Santa Ana and Los Angeles branch will strike the towns of Anaheim, Fullerton, Buena Park, Fulton Wells and Downey, thus paralelling the Southern Pacific from here to Los Angeles. It is expected that this line will be in operation in sixty days through from Los Angeles to San Diego via Santa Ana.

HEROIC TREATMENT.

How a Chinese Highbinder Received His Deserts.

SAN LOUIS OBISPO, September 24.—At Los Olivas track, the terminus of the Pacific Coast railway, yesterday, a Chinese highbinder came into a camp of Chinamen, and by gambling schemes considerably depleted the purses of the Mongols. Seperintendent McCurdy, learning of the highbinder's work, sent for the latter, ordered the Chinese bosses to hold him, and in the presence of the whole Chinese gang whipped him with a blacksnake. He then put the highbinder on the Santa Barbara stage, warning him never to return. The Chinese employes are all satisfied, and this moral ordinance is considered a benefaction.

A STORY OF THE DEEP.

Rescue of a Sailor After Many Days.

DISCOVERED AMONG INDIANS.

The Harrowing Story as Told by Vincent—Cannibalism Evident.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the Herald.]

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—The details of the rescue of a sailor named Vincent, the only survivor of the whaling bark Napoleon, lost in the Arctic Ocean years ago, are given in a letter received here to-day. Vincent was found by the United States cruiser Bear in the Indian camp near Cape Navaria, as heretofore related in the Associated Press dispatches. Vincent was in a deplorable condition when rescued. The miserable Indian clothing which partly covered him was tied upon his body in order to keep it from falling off, and his head was shaved in Indian style. When properly clothed and nourished, the unfortunate man was at last induced to give the history of his terrible sufferings. When the whaling bark Napoleon, of which he was one of the crew, was crushed in the ice, all hands took to the boats without procuring provisions of any description. Soon after leaving the bark the boats became separated, one in which Vincent was and another going together. Each of these boats contained nine men, who were sometimes on the ice and sometimes in the boats for many days. During this time their food consisted solely of two small captured seals and the leather of their boots. The weather was bitterly cold and their hands, feet, ears and noses became frozen and dropped off. Insanity and death stared them in the face. When the books finally reached the shore, only five of the eighteen men composing their crews remained. Of these Vincent was the only one who was able to walk. Two of the men who landed died shortly after going ashore, and the natives reported that of these two men the surviving one ate the flesh off the body of his dead companions. Vincent, the mate, and a sailor then alone remained. The two latter succumbed to death the first winter, and Vincent was left among the natives. He had lived with the Indians for two years and a half, and when at last discovered by Captain Healy he was a most pitiable aspect of humanity.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Chinese Highbinder's Unfortunate Resemblance.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—During the Tan Wong procession today, a cousin of Chow Pak Kit, who was assassinated in August last, excitedly approached a policeman and pointed out a Chinaman who he said was Chin Ah Sing, a highbinder, who did the shooting. Sergeant Thompson and posse were soon in pursuit of the man, and after a long chase over roofs, through alleys and under sidewalks, they at last cornered him in a cellar. While he was being taken to the city prison, a crowd of the murdered man's friends gathered and made a determined attempt to shoot him. The officers drew their weapons, however, and kept the crowd at bay. At the prison the Chinaman denied that he was the murderer, and said he had only been in San Francisco a few weeks, having before that time worked on a railroad. The nephew of the murdered man and several other Chinamen were summoned to identify the prisoner. They all said that while he bore a great resemblance to Chin Ah Sing, he was not the man. He will probably be released to-day.

They are expert equestrians, some of their movements being marvelously daring.

The Prince's Throat.

BERLIN, September 24.—Alarming reports of the renewal in the bad state of the throat affection of Crown Prince Frederick have been traced to Paris and Vienna sources. They are so definite and detailed that they create much anxiety here. Inquiry sent to Tobloch elicited a telegram to-night stating that the Prince has not been troubled with fresh symptoms. The assurances, however, do not quite dissipate the popular alarm over the Prince's condition. It is believed that he has had a slight relapse, and that the state of his throat is less promising.

The Culprit Surrenders Himself to the Authorities—His Victims' Antecedents

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.]

SAN FRANCISCO, September 24.—News has just been received here from San Jose of a double tragedy which occurred there this evening. John McArdle and John Rearden, while in Indian Valley, twelve miles this side of San Miguel, were shot through the heart by Newton Azwell, who had jumped land claimed by McArdle. The shots were heard by Mrs. Farragan, who lives near by, and looking out of the door, she saw Azwell leaving with a gun in his hand. McArdle was a blacksmith living in San Jose, and went down there about two weeks ago to look for Government land, taking Rearden along as a helper. McArdle returned to San Jose on Monday, and told his wife that he had made a fine location, and went back on Thursday. Azwell, it is understood, has gone to Bradley to give himself up. The bodies were shipped to San Jose on the train. McArdle was 39 years of age, a native of New York, and leaves a wife. Rearden was about 21 years. His home was in San Francisco, and he has a brother, a hackman for the Telephone Carriage Company.

What points he intends bringing in the hearing he would not state, but it is said he proposes to show that the law of conspiracy upon which Wren was convicted is inoperative.

Destructive Fire.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., September 24.—A destructive forest fire is raging at Foley station, on the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railroad, between St. Cloud and Hinckley. In response to a telegram for aid, help was sent out from St. Paul this afternoon. The loss will be heavy, but cannot as yet be definitely estimated.

AN INVALID'S HOME.

Incorporation of an Institution Long Needed.

A hospital and home for invalids, open to all sorts and conditions of people, has long been talked of in Los Angeles. There is apparently but one opinion as to the need of such an institution.

Over and above the rapid increase of population, there is the additional reason that the attractions of the climate and the beauty of this land will bring large numbers of health-seekers. To many of these the boarding-houses and hotels do not meet their demands. A quiet, homelike retreat where they can be provided with all things fitted their condition is what is wanted.

A corporation has been formed for the accomplishment of this purpose. The directors of the corporation are as follows: Mrs. James A. Anderson, Mrs. C. S. Fox, Mrs. A. N. Perry, Mrs. Frank Rader, Mrs. Burdette Chandler, Mrs. W. H. Workman, Mrs. I. K. Hellman, Mrs. Spence, Mr. J. F. Lowell and the Rev. Elias Birdsall.

The hospital has received a gift of lots from St. Paul's church. It is the purpose to secure a proper site and erect suitable buildings as soon as possible. In the meantime the organization will take charge of the private hospital managed by Sister Mary during the last two years, and employ her as the superintendent, so that the new enterprise will have the advantage of her proved capacity in carrying on the work.

The aims and purposes of the hospital being broad and liberal as possible, the authorities confidently look for general sympathy and assistance in carrying the enterprise to a successful issue. The by-laws declare the "purpose to minister to the bodies and souls of humanity without regard to race, creed or condition.

STREET PAVING.

Action of the Board of Public Works Yesterday.

Clerk Teed, of the City Council, has prepared notices to be sent to the City Water Company and the Los Angeles Gas Company, instructing them that they must do all their work in laying pipe and in making connections with their mains before the contractors for paving Main and Spring streets commence work. After the contractors have commenced work they will not be allowed to open the streets. Considerable complaint has been made that the gas and water companies have delayed the pavers in such a manner that a rapid advance has been impossible. The Board of Public Works, in its meeting yesterday, recommended this action, and, in addition, recommended that the contractors be allowed to blockade one-half of any one block on which they may be working. This will also enable the contractors to make better progress, for the citizens do not seem to consider the fact that the graders and pavers cannot work when the teams are on the ground and cannot be moved. The Superintendent of Streets has also been instructed to remove all obstructions along the line of the curbing, and this will aid in increasing the rapidity of the work.

AN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Efforts Being Made to Establish One Here.

Councilman Collins is endeavoring to bring about the establishment of an Industrial School for the use of the city and county. Such an institution, in Mr. Collins opinion, is absolutely necessary for the good of the youth in the city and county. At the present time there is no place to which a boy can be sent for reformation and for this reason Justice Austin has turned loose many who should have been placed in some such institution as contemplated. It is announced that the County Board of Supervisors intends to place the County Hospital elsewhere and to sell the building and grounds now occupied. Mr. Collins thinks that it would be a good thing if the Supervisors should set aside the building and grounds as an Industrial School. He is trying to effect some arrangement whereby the city can share in the expense with the county. The matter will probably be brought before the Council to-morrow and the Supervisors on Tuesday.

A HOLE IN HIS POCKET.

A Burglar Who Loses Most of His Plunder.

The burglars are again at work in the city and seem to be reaping a rich reward without much danger of being caught. On Friday, while Mrs. M. Kelleher who resides at No. 22 South Truman street was away from home some burglar entered her house by the back window and loaded his pocket with jewelry consisting of diamonds and gold trinkets besides a $10 gold piece. This burglar was rather unfortunate, for he evidently had a hole in his pocket. On the window sill was a diamond ring which had dropped through as he climbed out and along the road and in the yard were strewed other articles including a breast pin and almost all he had taken except a diamond pin, pearls and the $10 gold piece. No trace of the burglar has as yet been ascertained and it is probable he will never turn up.

Board of Health.

The Board of Health met yesterday afternoon, Mayor Workman in the chair, and Messrs. Breed and Collins present.

In the matter of the petition of Robert S. Baker et al. to have Chinatown removed, it was recommended that the matter be referred to the Health Officer in conjunction with the City Attorney.

In the matter of the removal of the garbage of the city, the Board recommended that a proposition to take charge of all the city garbage for $2500 for the first year and an addition of $100 each for fifteen years be accepted, provided the party enter into a contract for such time as the city can legally enter into a contract.

The matter of the Plumbing and Building Inspector was referred back to the Council without recommendation.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

[The tenor of communications appearing in this column is not necessarily endorsed by the editor of the HERALD. The writer who desires to be heard in it should always accompany his screed with his full names not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.]

A Repetition of Another Excursion.

EDITOR HERALD:—Only a few weeks ago the good people of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego counties were invited to attend a railway celebration at Santa Barbara on the 20th of August. In response to that invitation over 300 visitors went to that beautiful town to find no reception, no recognition and no chance to return till they had paid $1500 for food, drink and lodgings. The celebration had taken place the day before, and the "northern citrus belt" and the Anti-State subdivision delegates were the only persons that had even a mention or a chance to be known—a hundred men from the northern citrus belt counted for more than three hundred from South California.

A case of a similar nature has just occurred in the movement of the great body of visitors to the St. Louis Fair. About 200 went from the north and central part of the State and had the lead from the Needles onward, meeting and greeting the people on the way, accepting their generous hospitality and giving the praise to their section of the State, while following behind 1000 strong, the delegates from South California being several hours behind, were given no opportunity to be seen or heard at these receptions to which all Californians were invited. Four-fifths of the Californians danced attendance on the San Francisco delegates and were carried in after the fair. The question is raised if the 1000 delegates should not have had the post of honor in the front instead of lagging in the rear behind the 200 from San Francisco, who bore away all the honors. This question is a conundrum. Perhaps it can be answered in Santa Barbara, where the custom originated. If the Los Angeles fruits are delayed in a similar manner as the excursionists have been their products will be mellow and partially worthless on their arrival at St. Louis.

The matter will be investigated and the fact made known why the tail wags the dog instead of the dog wagging the tail. Yours, M.

The Boys' Home.

EDITOR HERALD:—I am entrusted with the sum of one hundred and twenty dollars and twenty-five cents, the proceeds of the concert given some time since in the First Baptist church, in the interest of the Boys' Home, and am ready to turn it over to whoever may be properly authorized to receive it. The Yacht Race

The approaching contests between the Thistle and Volunteer are creating a good deal of interest in sporting circles. There are many dinners to be given over the result, and the backers of the respective yachts are very much interested in anything concerning the crafts. A statement has been made in a morning contemporary that a dinner party of ten had been decided on, one-half the backers of the volunteer and the other half of the Thistle, in which the losers were to pay for the dinner and also to wait on the victors. This is scarcely correct, as although such a dinner has been arranged, there has been no condition made that the losers are to become temporary garcons, the terms simply calling for $100 dinner, the limit of which will probably be extended to $150.

The betting at present in the East is slightly in favor of ths Volunteer, although in town the odds are quoted as even.

The cup will be raced for best two out of three, the contests to take place on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of this week, weather permitting.

Pullman Passengers.

The following passengers left yesterday on the 1:30 train: Mrs. M. P. Wood, Major Chase, Mr. Jewett, A. Fletcher, Mr. Shilling, Mr. Seamans, W. B. Atwood, J. A. Hart, J. Levy, Mr. Hammond, H. H. Pearson, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Boynton, Miss May Madden, J. F. Devlin.

The following left on the 7:30 train: S. Allen, A. Baldman, R. Stevenson, M. Hoff, M. A. Gunst, W. D. Shawhan, A. Kendall, H. Morris, Mrs. Peel, Lee Gunst, J. D. Rettehouse, Jas. Grant, O. B. Johnson.

The Clearing House.

Business at the Clearing House last week was lighter than was expected, but it was acknowledged by everyone that there was a much quieter feeling than had been observable in the city for some time. It was not to have been expected that business would be on the increase every week in the year, for there has in every city been a lull or resting period where all get ready for a larger business to come. The record for the past week is as follows: Exchanges, $1,259,290; balances, $141.325.39.

The Baptist College of Los Angeles.

This new institution of learning, just opened on the west side of town, starts out in its career under the most favorable prospects. At the commencement of the college there were seventy students enrolled, and arrangement has been made for students in the vicinity of the college to be transported to and from the college at half fare rates. As soon as rails can be procured the dummy line will be extended to the College.

THE SOLDIER'S HOME.

Interesting Letter to One of the Citizens.

The following interesting letter addressed to Mr. A. W. Francisco, is given to the public for perusal, inasmuch as it it refers to a matter in which every one in Los Angeles is interested:

THE NATIONAL HOME FOR DISABLED VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS,
Office of the First Vice-President, Board of Managers, 400 East Seventh street, Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 12th, 1887.

A. W. Francisco—Dear Sir: I am just home from my summer trip, or your letter would have been answered sooner.

The Board of Managers met at Long Branch on the 6th instant.

It was resolved to start for California on the 10th of November, stopping on the way at the Central Branch Soldiers' Home, Dayton, Ohio, Western branch, Leavenworth, Kas., and perhaps the Milwaukee branch, Wisconsin.

The route has not yet been determined, but it will probably be by the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe; if so, we will stop at your place first, thence perhaps, direct to San Francisco.

As soon as the route is determined, I will write to you again.

Now ,as to the gift of the land. The board will endeavor to select a site embracing the following conditions: Climate, transportation, water supply, fuel, etc.; or in other words, the healthiest and most economical place to take care of the men. But everything being equal, it would seem that the place offering the best inducements would secure the branch.

Milwaukee gave $100,000, Leavenworth 640 acres of land and $50,000 to adorn the grounds.

I suppose that the citizens who made the above contributions did so from patriotic and business motives.

If the land is given for a branch of the National Soldiers Home for D. V. S., it would revert to the city when no longer required for that purpose.

The Central Branch is a very attractive place; the grounds are well kept, commanding and beautiful. As many as 160,000 visit it annually.

I suppose that a branch could be made equally, if not more attractive, in your glorious climate. Yours truly,

[Signed.] L. A. HARRIS,
First Vice-President, Cincinnati, O.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

The Term to Open on Monday, October Third.

The public schools of this city will re-open on Monday, October 3d, and continue in session thirty-six weeks, exclusive of vacations. There has been no change in the school districts and all the children are expected to report early on the morning in question at the schools in their districts. In some of the districts there will not be accommodation for the scholars, and in order that the Board of Education may know exactly what to do in the matter, the parents are requested to have the children registered on the opening day. It is almost certain that the children in the Brooklyn Heights district will have to attend half a day at the Boyle Heights school, and that those in the San Pedro street district will go to the Morris Vineyard school for half a day, but the children are instructed to report on Monday morning of next week at the San Pedro and Brooklyn Heights schools. There will in all probability be a press for places, and the children in all districts should be on hand early.

There will be a teachers' meeting on Saturday afternoon, October 1st, at two o'clock, at which all the teachers and principals in the department are expected to be present. Instructions will then be issued in preparation for the work of the next term. Teachers will on that occasion receive their warrants for one-tenth of their salaries. Some time since, the Board of Education fixed the salaries of the teachers at a stated rate per year, payable in ten installments, commencing with September 30th and ending June 30th.

During vacation the buildings and yards have been placed in excellent order, and efforts are being made to push ahead the construction of the new buildings as fast as possible, so that the children may have the full benefit of the educational advantages designed to be given in the public schools. So long as they are able to receive but a half-day's teaching the parents and teachers feel that the schooling is not up to a standard. As soon as the school bonds are sold the building will be commenced, and it will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

THE DEPOT.

The Ground Cleared and Switches Laid.

A fortnight ago the S. P. R. R. Co., through its agent, obtained permission of the City Council to construct switches into the property at the foot of Fifth street for the purpose of commencing the construction of the new passenger depot. Since that time two tracks have been laid from the Alameda street line, and work on the building will shortly commence. The orange trees which were on the land to be occupied by the building and tracks have been cut down and the way prepared for the building operations. The depot will be situated on Alameda street, exactly opposite Fifth street, the ground extending 1900 feet from Fourth to Sixth streets, and being 300 feet in width on the west side of Alameda street. Although the plans and elevation of the depot building have not arrived, it is certain that it will be a very handsome structure of brick six hundred feet long and two stories in height. It will be the best depot building in the State and surrounded as it is by orange trees it will prove very attractive to visitors arriving in Los Angeles. It will contain dining rooms, and other apartments for the use of travelers and all designed with especial care for that purpose. On a triangular piece of land facing the depot and fronting on Fifth street and Gladys avenue a large hotel will shortly be commenced, and other buildings in the vicinity are contemplated, so that, what was once a large and profitable orange orchard will be in a short time one of the busiest portions of the city. Fifth street is the only street in this vicinity which does not go clear through to the river, but this leads directly to the depot and will be the one on which most of the travel will occur. Other streets are being graded and graveled and by the time the depot building is completed everything will be in order.

WEST LOS ANGELES.

Improvements Under Way in that Vicinity.

There is a building boom in progress in West Los Angeles and, from appearances, before long, this section of the counntry will be settled by people of the best class, in residences which will compare more than favorably with those in any other part of the city. There are in the course of erection, buildings of the latest designs beyond Park Station, and, it is stated, that others are in contemplation as soon as labor and material can be obtained. A street railroad is being constructed from Park Station to Rosecrans. All of the ties have been distributed as far as the latter place and graders are now at work on the roadbed. It is expected that the cars will be running before the rains commence. A large force of brickmasons and carpenters are now at work on the hotel, which is to be called "Rosecrans." It will be a fine structure and has been leased by Messrs. D'Artois & Webb, who are at the front of the improvements in this vicinity, to a gentleman from New York. The contract for the laying of water pipes has been let, and very shortly every resident will have all he can use. The future possibilities of this part of the community are great, and it will be to Los Angeles what Oakland is to San Francisco or Brooklyn to New York, or Evanston and Hyde Park to Chicago.

Hard on Croakers.

In interviews about town with business men yesterday a few croakers were found who predicted a close money market and consequently hard times in the near future because there was more money going into the treasury than was coming out. But when informed that the President was purchasing United States bonds by the million, the last proposition being for $14,000,000, which at the premiums paid would put over $15,000,000 in circulation, while the purchase of silver bullion monthly of $2,000,000, would add so much to the circulation in silver certificates and more than cover the accumulation in the United States treasury they subsided, and said they had never thought of these two elements. If any attempt should be made to corner the money market the President can purchase enough bonds to break the corner at once so there is no danger of a money pressure, especially in South California, where there is so much money constantly arriving and where cities and counties and great railway corporations are constantly going forward with building improvements that scatter the money abroad daily in generous quantities. There never was so prosperous a time in South California as at present, and never such a spectacle of home-building exhibited in the country as is now shown in South California.

There is no room for croakers here.

Misdemeanor the Charge.

Dan Smith, who was arrested on Friday night last by Detective Alford for forcing the woman Ida Wilson to lead a life of shame, was yesterday charged with misdemeanor on the prison register. The District Attorney was of the opinion that a charge of adultery would not hold, for the reason that Smith is a single man. The woman was discharged yesterday for the reason that there was not sufficient evidence against her to insure a conviction. Besides, the police were not desirous of prosecuting her.

Last evening R. Wilson, husband of the unfortunate woman, arrived from San Bernardino, where he has been working in a livery stable for the past three weeks. He walked into the police station beside his wife. He stated that about a month ago he became tired of his wife's reckless ways and left her. Yesterday morning he was dumb-founded when he heard of her downfall, and he came up to help her. He expressed it as his opinion that Smith made his wife enter the life she did against her will. According to Wilson,s story, his wife told him that she loved Smith, and intended to stick to him. Smith is held without bonds.

Helped Themselves.

Last evening an express wagon driven by Captain Fletcher and loaded with an old trunk and a couple of drunks drove up to the city prison. The prisoners gave the names of E. W. Trentrup and J. W. Taylor and were locked up on charges of grand larceny for having stolen the express wagon from in front of its stand at the junction of Main and Spring streets. The fellows were beastly drunk and were hardly able to talk. They managed, however, to explain that they wanted to hire an expressman yesterday afternoon. They found a wagon but the driver was missing. They mounted the vehicle and drove off. After securing a trunk which they wanted to move they claim to have been on their way back to the stand when arrested at the corner of Olive and Fifth streets.

Sheely Convicted.

The case of Dan Sheely, charged with burglarizing the house of W. J. Brodrick, was concluded in Judge Cheney's court yesterday evening. The testimony of the defendant was not very convincing to the jury that he was innocent of the crime with which he was charged. The case went to the jury early in the afternoon and about dinner time it brought in a verdict of guilty as charged. The jurymen evidently had an idea that the alibi was not proven by the defendant.

Rough on Tramps.

Archie Abbott and John Hosler, two individuals without any visible means of support, were locked up on a charge of vagrancy yesterday. Chief Darcy says that it is his desire to free the town of its floating population of the tramp fraternity which is at present infested with. They will all be notified to leave, and if they do not do so they will be caged, prosecuted and then supported at the city's expense in the county jail.

Worthy of Perusal.

In this morning's issue of the HERALD, the firm of Patton, Waters & Patton, dealers in real estate, announce some superior bargains worthy of the consideration of the people. Among other things they offer 30 acres on Pico street for $375 per acre. Sixty acres at Alhambra for $1000 per acre. A beautiful 56-acre vineyard at Florence for $550 per acre. Several bargains at San Juan Capistrano and other places. In the city they have three fine residence sites in the Fort Hill tract, which are well worthy of inspection. They also advertise a magnificent place on Downey avenue, opposite the residence of Baron Rogniat. A perusal of the advertisement of these gentlemen may be productive of good to the readers.

How Women Use the Telegraph.

A Hartford man, whose wife was going abroad, asked her to telegraph him a word or two, letting him know of her safe arrival in New York. In a few hours he received the following message: "Collect: Dear George—Arrived here safely, at 15 minutes after 6. The train was due at 6, but we were delayed 15 minutes en route. Had a perfectly lovely trip. Don't worry about me; I'll get along all right. And take good care of yourself. Be so careful about taking cold this damp weather. Remember that you are to keep on your flannels until the 15th of June. Be sure that you have the house opened and aired as often as possible. Remember what I said about your socks and shirts. Don't forget to keep the basement door locked. Write every day. I'm sure to have a lovely time. So good in you to let me go. You must come over after me in August. Forever and ever and ever, yours, Mamie."

An hour later Mamie was pained to receive the following reply to her "word or two:" "Don't cable anything from Liverpool. I'm a ruined man if you do. George."—[Ex.

OAKLAND,

THE BEAUTIFUL!

California abounds in choice residence locations, but of them all Oakland and vicinity is incomparably the finest. It has every advantage. Its climate is most enjoyable, being never uncomfortably warm nor disagreeably cool. Its many charming drives, its beautiful lawns embowered in a perfect wealth of ever blooming flowers, and its magnificent, soul-inspiring views are the wonder and admiration of all travelers. In healthfulness it surpasses all cities of the United States, its death rate averaging only 14 per 1000. Its educational facilities are thorough and complete, embracing all classes from the lowest grades to the State University, and far surpassing those of any other location on the coast. Then it is within 30 miles of San Francisco and has half-hourly and splendid communication therewith. Furthermore, it is backed and surrounded by the finest country in the world. A section that produces all the grains, fruits and nuts of the temperate and semi-tropic zones, in finest quality and richest abundance

WITHOUT IRRIGATION!

Its advantages as a manufacturing site are drawing to it many of the chief industries of the State. And it is the natural and inevitable terminus of all transcontinental railroads entering the State. Finally, though rising in value, land is still cheap compared with locations of much less merit, and thus for homes or investment presents splendid opportunities.

WORTHY

Of Confidence.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla is a medicine that, during nearly 40 years, in all parts of the world, has proved its efficacy as the best blood alterative known to medical science.

SARSAPARILLA (extracted from the root of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla) is its base, and its powers are enhanced by the extracts of Yellow Dock and Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other potent ingredients.

IS your blood vitiated by derangements of the digestive and assimilatory functions? is it tainted by Scrofula? or does it contain the poison of Mercury or Contagious Disease?

THE leading physicians of the United States, who know the composition of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, say that nothing else so good for the purification of the blood is within the range of pharmacy.

ONLY by the use of this remedy is it possible for a person who has corrupted blood to attain sound health and prevent transmission of the destructive taint to posterity.

THOROUGHLY effective renovation of the system must include not only the removal of corruption from the blood, but its enrichment and the strengthening of the vital organs.

RELIABLE witnesses, all over the world, testify that this work is better accomplished by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA than by any other remedy.

BLOOD that is corrupted through disease is made pure, and blood weakened through diminution of the red corpuscles is made strong, by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PURIFYING the blood and building up the system require time in serious cases, but benefit will be derived from the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA more speedily than from anything else.

MEDICINE for which like effects are falsely claimed, is abundant in the market, under many names, but the only preparation that has stood the test of time, and proved worthy of the world's confidence, is

J. M. HALE & CO'S DOUBLE COLUMN "AD."

AN EXPOSITION!

There is no such thing as the "Latest," as any one of a hundred different styles can lay claim to this distinction, and one be as nearly right as the other. You read in some Portfolio of Fashion that Mazarine colors will be very much worn, and stepping into a Dry Goods Store you ask to see the "latest" in Dress Goods, and the accommodating clerk shows you Greys, Tans, Navy Blue, Garnet, and Grey and Brown admixtures, and when you ask for Mazarine colors, tells you that "they are just out." or "will be in again in a few days" (not knowing what Mazarine colors are,) the customer may take it for granted that any class of Dress Goods, either woolen, wool and cotton mixed, or silk admixtures, that can be draped easily, and in any color and shade that is becoming to the wearer, will be worn to the exclusion of any given rule. Of course with each season comes something new, but a close inspection will show the same colors made darker or lighter as the season requires. Braids in sets, in fact any flat garniture will be worn on plain or smooth goods; rough mixtures not being trimmed at all, only worn full. Our advice is—Whatever suits you, buy.

Beet Sugar.

A sugar refiner of San Francisco, who draws his supplies from the Hawaiian Islands, seeing that the source is not one to be permanently relied on, and turning his financial telescope to all quarters of the globe for new cane fields, fails to discover the object of his search. On the east side of San Francisco bay, at Alvarado, he finds a little plant where sugar is manufactured from beets grown in the neighborhood, and here he gets a new idea. Thereupon he hies him away to Germany and France, where a supply of sugar for nearly all Europe is extracted from beets. He goes to study the industry and the process. So well satisfied is he with the investigation, that he has returned home with the announcement that he has purchased thirty tons of beet seed in order at once to set this great industry on foot in California.

This announcement is one of no small moment to the State. We are now a people in this commonwealth of a million and a half of souls. We are, besides, a community whose present great industry is fruit growing. Large stretches of our country are excellent for grazing purposes, for cattle and milk. Canned fruit and condensed milk have come forward among the most important enterprises of our day. Neither can be carried on without cheap sugar. Sugar paying duty to enter our ports cannot be cheap, and the supply to be had from Honolulu is inadequate. The population now in the State consumes in home use perhaps 50,000 pounds a day. The refiners here ship large amounts to the region east of the mountains. The demand will grow at a rapid pace, for both home consumption and shipment. There is practically no limit to put to the possibilities of this trade.

The Alvarado refinery has demonstrated that beet root sugar can be produced at a cost which will allow the profitable sale of the commodity at a small fraction over five cents per pound. That is the cheapest sugar ever made in the Union. Beets will grow in all parts of California. There is hardly a county in the State where they do not grow to great perfection. Of course, some soils are much better fitted to their production than others. Los Angeles county has wide areas of the best soil in the world for the production of beets. The roots raised in California, and particulary in Southern California, are particularly rich in saccharine matter, and the sugar made from the beets is equal to the very best cane sugar. The two commodities cannot be distinguished one from the other. The severest chemical tests reveal no difference between them.

Although the refiner who is moving in this has his residence in San Francisco and owns a large refinery in the Bay City, that place, nor no other in the State, will be able to monopolize the business. Sugar is a matter of universal consumption. If it can be made equally as cheap here as at Alvarado—and that proposition cannot be controverted—we can compete very successfully with any refinery which has to pay even one-half a cent per pound to get its goods to our doors. Then again, Los Angeles is nearer to the country east of the Continental Divide than San Francisco is, as we have much better transportation facilities than that city can boast. Every element in the problem gives us the key to the situation.

One of the greatest industries ever broached in the State is about to be launched in this manufacture of sugar from beets. It will call into requisition thousands of acres of land, and it will pay the cultivators of that land a large profit. Then it will create a great demand for labor in the refineries, and more important than all it will give us cheap sugar with which to can our fruits.

THE Board of Health proposes a scheme to get rid of the offal and garbage of the city for the small outlay of $2500 per annum. This is to include the removal and distruction of all offal and garbage placed on the sidewalks by housekeepers in the city. In making a contract for such service some very stringent provisions should be made for the removal of this matter at proper hours, and in carts constructed for the purpose. To let offensive offal stand under the rays of the sun along the sidewalks until past midday, or to allow the removal of this in open, old and leaking carts, is something ineffably out of the proper order of things. Garbage should be all taken away in the early hours of the morning and soon after it is placed on the sidewalks. It should be carried in water-tight wagons, with proper covers on them.

DION BOUCICAULT, the eminent playwright and actor, will appear at our beautiful Opera House during the entire current week. He presents a very attractive bill, and will no doubt delight the lovers of the drama. Among other plays, he will present Phryne, a new addition to his repertoire. The name is said to be an utter misnomer, as there is nothing in the drama to recall the celebrated courtesan of Thebes, who wished to rebuild its walls after they were destroyed by Alexander the Great, on condition that this inscription should be put upon the new defences of the town: "These walls were destroyed by Alexander, and rebuilt by Phryne." It is unfortunate that such a name should have been given the play, as about one dramatic critic in ten spells it correctly. The fair, but frail Bœotian would hardly know herself if she saw the Patronymic contorted, as we usually do, into Phyrne.

THE real estate sales of Friday, as they appeared at the Recorder's office, footed up only a little over $100,000. This gave occasion for a few weak-kneed and slow-brained people to predict a collapse. If these croakers, whose voice is always heard in the land, no matter how prosperous times are, would or rather could think, they migh thave observed that there were fully one-half the recorded sales reported at a nominal consideration. Sales so reported are very often for very large sums. Now, on Friday, there were about one hundred and eight sales made, and the aggregate of the considerations was hardly less than $200,000. But if this view is disputed, or not sufficiently reassuring to the weak-kneed brethren, they should all take a glance at the transfers recorded yesterday, when they numbered one hundred and eighteen, and the total amount ran up to $400,528. That is pretty well for dull times. The coming winter will see wild times in the sale of realty hereabouts.

ALL well disposed people are anxiously desirous of seeing the street-paving, now happily begun, carried on with vigor, and a big showing made in the way of perfect streets before the winter gets here with its streams of water, and floods of fastidious visitors. The matter is very important. Yet in spite of our universal interest in this thing, few of us will undergo a very small inconvenience in order to aid the good work. The City Council, however, has taken the matter up in real earnest, and that body proposes to do all possible to expedite the paving business. To-morrow an ordinance will be presented, and will doubtless pass, authorizing those engaged in paving the streets, to obstruct all one side of the street, to the extent of one block at a time, so that the workmen may operate without interruption. This is entirely a usual step to take under the circumstances, and where it works a little hardship, we must all make the best of it, and in the most amiable spirit. A measure will pass also, calling upon the gas and water companies to keep ahead of the paving, in the making of the necessary changes in connections incident to the making of the streets. These corporations are fortunately in the hands of good business men, who doubtless will see the propriety of this.

AN Industrial School for youthful offenders has for a long time been sadly needed in this city and county. Often has the establishment of such an institution been demanded by the press. But up to the present time no really earnest effort in this direction has been made by anyone. Now, however, the need of such a place for the confinement of young culprits, especially boy criminals, is forcing itself on the attention of the authorities with redoubled emphasis. Certain members of the City Council have taken the matter up in earnest, and some action of a definite and progressive character is pretty sure to result. It is known that the Board of Supervisors has in mind the selling of the County Hospital, and the thought has been set in motion to secure the buildings and grounds now used for the shelter of the indigents and sick of the county as a home for boys guilty of crimes which demand their restraint for a time. To shut these youthful culprits up in a cell with fellows who have grown grey in the commission of crime, is the best way possible to harden these erring boys, and set them for good and all in the paths of vice. Proper treatment may reclaim some, and retard all in such a downward career, and it is economy to use all proper methods for the reformation of such boys. Success in some form ought to come to the efforts now making in this good work.

IVANHOE!

The Best Investment Offered Anywhere in Los Angeles.

IVANHOE offers more inducements to purchasers of residence lots than any other suburb of Los Angeles. Among the many reasons why Ivanhoe property is a first-class investment, we may mention the following:

First—It is only four miles from the Court House in Los Angeles to the center of Ivanhoe.

Second—It is connected with Los Angeles by the best steam dummy railway in California.

Third—The fare from the city is five cents.

Fourth—Trains will run often enough and fast enough to accommodate business men.

Fifth—A complete water system furnishes water to every lot.

Sixth—The land is high and the atmosphere pure and dry.

Seventh—The soil is first

ANTI-BEER.

Lecture by St. John and Resolutions of the Convention.

Armory hall was crowded to overflowing last evening with people who went to see, more than to listen to the prohibitionist, John P. St. John, lecture. Before the lecturer was introduced, Elder Houh proposed to his method of defraying the expenses of the prohibition campaign which was when summed up, the old Methodist plan of taking a collection. The collection was taken but the amount was not announced. Mr. Jesse Yarnell then introduced the speaker for the evening who was greeted with some applause. Mr. St. John delivered a fine encomium on the city of Los Angeles and said he saw no boom here but an energetic effort on the part of its citizens to develop the wonderful resources of this grand country.

Mr. St. John then passed to the question of prohibition, and predicted that in two years from now prohibition will be in the majority. He stated that it was his policy to refrain from vilification and throwing mud at any party or body of men, and that, personally, he had nothing against anyone, not even the saloon-keepers, for, he continued, they are no worse than the saloons they keep, and the saloons are no worse than the law that grants them licenses, and the law is no worse than the church members that help make that law, and the Lord in the final day of judgment will bunch together the saloon men and the church deacons who helped license them to deal out poison.

"At present," said he, "there are only two ways in which to deal with the liquor question—one is high license and the other is prohibition." The former is no worse than no law at all, therefore the latter is the only way in which to deal with this dreadful curse, and he thought that the time was not far distant when the church or the saloon would have to go down. To the sober-minded Christian people the prohibition party looked to lead it on to victory. "These are," said the speaker, "as it were, the Jersey cream of the Democratic and Republican parties, and in a few more years there will be nothing left but chalk and skimmed milk of those two old parties."

"I challenge," said Mr. St. John, "any newspaper in America to tell me any issue that now exists between the Democratic and Republican parties. Dan Vorhees spoke in Denver a few weeks ago, and he had nothing newer to offer to his listeners than the Louisiana purchase, and a few weeks since John Sherman spoke to an immense throng at Springfield, Ill., and his theme was the remarkable new one of 'more protection to life needed.' He here referred to his home being burned and later to his life being endangered in Indiana, and to six martyrs, as he called them, who have fallen battling for intemperance.

During the course of his lecture Mr. St. John read comments upon him from the morning Times, and proceeded to review the reviewer. Mr. St. John's remarks brought down the house on several occasions. The Republicans in general seemed to come in for the greater share of criticism.

During the afternoon session of the Prohibition Convention the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we cordially welcome to California our late standard-bearer, the Hon. John P. St. John, and assure him of our undoubting confidence in his integrity and nobility of character. We rejoice that in all this broad land and among the many thousands of those who know him intimately and thoroughly, not a whisper of suspicion has ever been set afloat concerning him, but by two or three parties whose self-confessed originality rendered their testimony utterly void and worthless. We hope that our heroic visitor may in a very few years hence be our victorious standard-bearer in the Presidential chair.

Resolved (2), That the executive officers of the County Committee be authorized to push the completion of the organization of this county, to secure an early visitation of the clubs and leagues, and, if possible, to assist our neighbor counties to start the work of organization at an early date.

Resolved (3), That we commend the formation of Young Men's Prohibition Clubs, to meet weekly, in every community of this State, as one of the best promises of speedy success.

Resolved (4), That we extend to the W. C. T. U. of Southern California our sympathy and promise our support and willing assistance in their great work of education and reform, and commend their enterprise of building headquarters as one of vast importance to the financial, moral and religious interests of the city.

Resolved (5), That we endorse the petition of the W. C. T. U. to A. T. & S. F. Company, requesting them to pemit no drinking bars or liquor saloons in their depots or stations, and to demand of their employees on the trrins and in their management, an entire abstinence from the use of all intoxicating beverages.

Resolved (6), That we re-affirm our county platform adopted September 4th, 1886, and rejoice that our Eastern compatriots in New York, Pennsylvania and Nebraska have adopted a similar aggressive declaration of principles.

Resolved (7), That our prohibition clubs throughout the county should endeavor to cultivate prohibition sentiment in their committees by a liberal patronage of the temperance press, which should be, is, and always has been, the strongest and most constantly active arm of the service.

Resolved (8), That we tender our kindest sympathy to Sister Miss Emma Harrison, State Organizer of the W. C. T. U., who, owing to her intense labors at Sacramento in aiding to secure the passage of the Scientific Instruction law, has been now five months a suffering invalid, confined to her bed. We lament also her absence from the field of labor in which she was so eminently capable, active and useful, and we pray for her speedy restortation to health and usefulness.

Resolved (9), That we petition the State Central Committee to fix the place for holding the next State Convention in 1888 at Los Angeles, or at some place in the southern portion of the State, believing that the large preponderence of the southern vote at this time entitles us to ask that we may have one session of the State Convention that will best accommodate the large majority of the delegates of the State.

Resolred (10), That we recognize the valuable services of Miss C. S. Burnett in her recent tour of the County, and commend her as a very successful speaker and organizer whom all her audiences without exception most highly appreoiate. And we likewise endorse and highly commend our young organizer, Mr. Samuel Grogg.

Resolved, (11), That in view of the almost universal use of cigarrettes and cigars by the boys and young men of Los Angeles, and of the ruinous effects of those poisonous habits upon the health and morals of youth, we deem it the duty of all Prohibitionists, Christians, patriots and good citizens to discourage and discountenance the practice, and to use our personal kindly influence with the young to this end, on all fitting and convenient occasion.

Resolved, (12), That W. Jennings Demorest, in conceiving the plan and paying the necessary expenses of inaugurating the Demorest prize medal contests, deserves and should receive the gratitude of mankind, and that we, as members of the Prohibition party, will endeavor to promote these competitions among our juvenile organizations.

Resolved, (13). That this convention tender a vote of thanks to Mrs. Lucy S. Blanchard for her work in the W. C. T. U. Band of Kope, and especially in training the young orators of this city to so eloquently plead the cause of the home against the saloon.

Respectfully submitted,
Will D. Gould,
John Brown,
Mrs. Emma Brown,
Rolle Borton,
J. W. Potts,
Committee.

ON THE WAR-PATH.

A Woman's Experience at Drinking Absinthe.

Quite a sensation was created on Main street above Third, last evening, by the breaking of glass and the yells and screams of women. Officer Fowler was called into a laundry near by, and it was learned that the proprietor's wife was on a tear. She was full of absinthe, blended with claret, and the result can be better imagined than described. She imagined that the people who kept the restaurant next door were endeavoring to put her out of her store, and she concluded to repay them. She seized a large axe and went around to the rear of the place and was amusing herself chopping down the house, when officer Fowler arrested her for disorderly conduct. The woman in the restaurant jumped out of the side windows and sought refuge in a neighbors house. The woman gave bail and was released. She ran all the way home and again started in to capture the neighborhood but was subdued again by being introduced to the cooling influence of a cell at the city prison.

POMP IN LANGUAGE.

When It is to Be Condemned and When It is Admissible.

People are apt enough to say, "Pomp in language is hateful; nothing but what is simple and unadorned is tolerable." and then to turn from this proposition to instance some passage of English prose as perfect, in which the writer can be seen, if we look below the surface, to have shown the most extreme solicitude for getting that well ordered procession of sound and sense which is essential not only to dignified, but to all clear and lucid writing. When we say we hate pomp in writing, we really mean bad pomp, not good. Dr. Johnson is often the extreme instance of bad pomp in words—of pompousness of language. But, if he too often fell into the strutting vein so inimitably parodied in the "Rejected Addresses," he could also marshal his phrases and periods with a rhythm of exquisite grace. There are volumes in the style of: "Professions, lavishly effused and parsimoniously verified are very alike inconsistent with the precepts of innate rectitude and the practice of external policy; let it not then be conjectured that because we are unassuming we are imbeciles; that forbearance is any indication of despondency or humanity of demerit." (We quote from the parody, which is a convenient quintessence of Dr. Johnson's faults of style.) But there are also passages like that which closes the "Life of Milton," or the preface to the dictionary. It is the good, not the bad pomp of language, when Johnson writes as he does of Milton's great poems: "His great works were performed under discountenance and in blindness, but difficulties vanished at his touch; he was born for whatever is arduous, and his work is not the greatest of heroic poems only because it is not the first." In our own day we have seen another instance of a writer who, though he had not sufficient taste to prevent him from constantly falling into an extreme and, indeed, ridiculous pomposity of phrase, yet at the same time was capable of the true pomp. Lord Beaconsfield wrote the passages on the moon in "Vivian Gray" and "Tancred," but he also wrote the impressive tribute to Lord George Bentinck. We must, however, leave the subject of the charm of pomp in words, with so much hinted at as to the conditions that govern it. To pursue it in any sense adequately would, no doubt, lead one along some of the most delightful paths of English literature, but the subject is one which cannot properly be tacked on to the more general view of the charm of pomp which we have endeavored to set before our readers.

The Steel Rail Outlook.

Some steel rail manufacturers are beginning to anticipate a falling off in the demand for rails in 1888, based on the fact that they are not booking many orders for the coming year. While it is somewhat early in the season to expect orders for the coming season, still there is some reason for believing that construction will not be as great as during 1887, although new enterprises are being announced every day and an enormous mileage has been projected. The great companies are not likely to push competition into each other's territory so actively next year as they are now doing, and this is a matter for congratulation. But there is still a vast extent of unoccupied territory which must have railways, and thousands of miles will continue to be added each year for an indefinite period. That the prices of rails are likely to be lower is not a matter for surprise. The rail makers of the country have been overloaded with orders during the past year and have pushed prices up so high that they have invited foreign competition. The Southern Pacific company has received or has now on the way 55,000 tons of rails manufactured in England which are to be used in extensive developments of that system in California, and very considerable quantities of English rails have been bought for other roads, the imports for the year ending September 30th aggregating 77,026 tons, against 10,476 in 1876, and 4177 in 1885. As a result of this foreign competition, in connection with the belief entertained in some quarters that railroad construction will show a falling off next year, prices of rails have materially declined. They are now quoted at Eastern mills at about $38 for delivery this year, while for next year's delivery $36 is accepted. One Pennsylvania mill reports the sale of 15,000 tons at that rate. Every rail mill in the country has all the orders that it can fill during the present year, and when 1888 opens it will very likely be found that the fears of a great falling off in consumption have been much exaggerated and that, at prices which will keep out the foreign article, American mills will still be kept busy. The reduction of from $4 to $6 a ton compared with the prices which have been obtained this year will of itself encourage railway building, as it will mean a reduction of something like $400 or $500 per mile in the cost of construction.

In this connection it should be said that unfounded reports have been published to the effect that all the great western railway companies had decided to stop further construction for the coming year. While new enterprises are not now projected by these companies on as great a scale as that of 1887, they all have lines under construction on which work will be continued next year, and the irresistible forces of competition will also very probably incite them to other undertakings which now are not anticipated.—[Railway Age.

HE WAS VERY POLITE.

How a Dignified Man Gave a Young Lady a Seat.

There was a very polite man aboard a yellow cable car 189 on Market street yesterday. He was tall and bony, and had been having a good time in spite of Sunday liquor laws. There was only one other passenger in the car and the polite man had a whole side to himself. At Tenth street a well-dressed young woman got aboard.

"Hic—have—my—sheet," said the young man, as he rose and made a wavering but dignified bow.

"Thank you, sir, but there are other seats," said she.

"Don't—disturb—hic—them—take—hic—my—sheet," he said.

"Well, really there is plenty of room," she answered nervously.

"I can—hic—stand with the others," he gallantly replied, and then the Chesterfieldian passenger insisted that the young woman was driven by his persistent and dignified politeness to take the proffered seat and grew more dignified as he stood in the almost empty car as it speeded on its way across the Schuylkill.—[Philadelphia Press.

A Baseball Sermon.

The Rev. Mr. Woolsack, popularly known as "The Deacon," in his sermon up the creek last Sunday made a few remarks pertinent to baseball. Pointing out of the window at a game in progress on the adjoining Wilson flats, he said: "See that loafer with the bird cage on his head, standing like a straddle-bug behind the bat. He is not desecrating the Sabbath day by playing ball, because he isn't playing. He can't play. He imagines he can, of course, and goes through all the painful contortions of a real ball player, but in the devil's score book he is charged ten times over for every error he makes, and a nice record he will have when the season is over and the time for his eternal rest should be at hand. It will be a sorry rest for him."

Just then some one made a long hit and a shout went up from the crowd.

"Yes, hoopla!" yelled the Deacon, raising his voice above the din; "hoopla till the cows come home, but unless you raise your voices in hosannas to the Lord you'll never reach the shining home-plate of everlasting life. That was a long hit to center, and I give his nibs there credit for taking it in, but the devil will take him in just as slick on the last inning of all. You may send in your curved balls and smash the leather in the nose to the right or to the left field; you may steal from bag to bag and slide in home on your pantaloons, but finally you will get a goose egg in the kingdom to come. Aye, pound on the pearly gates with your baseball bats; if there is a shadow of a Sunday game on it, down to the the eternal roast you go. Saint Peter careth not whether you belong to the Snapdragons or Whangdoodlers; if you swing the festive willow and pound the bags Sunday saltpetre will not save you. There goes another long hit to left, and another howl goes up from the assembled multitude of dudes and loafers. Chase the ball; aye, leg it until your ungodly heels beat a tatoo on your coat tails, but my word for it, the devil will never get away from your elbow. Old Clootie is a base runner and a ball chaser himself, and he will stay with you until his dominions freeze over and have to be abandoned for an ice pond." The deacon made a few more remarks, exhorting his hearers to shun the seductive ball field and the trout pond Sunday, and announced services next Sabbath morning and evening at the Red Schoolhouse in Sugar Creek.—[Oil City Derrick.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—
"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."
The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—
"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.
There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.
These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

SONGS OF THE WAR.

Origin of Popular War Melodies as Familiar as "Old Hundred."

One of the most interesting articles in the Century for August is from the pen of Brander Matthews, who gives the history of the most famous war songs. Of all these songs Mr. Matthews thinks but two are finer than "Yankee Doodle" and the "Star Spangled Banner," and these are "John Brown's Body" and "Marching Through Georgia." Of the former the genesis of both words and music is obscure. His conjectural construction of the story of the song is briefly thus:

In 1846 William Steffe, of Philadelphia, was asked by a fire company in Charleston, South Carolina, to write an air to certain verses, the chorous of which began; "Say, bummers, will you meet us?" After the air had served its purpose a new set of words was fitted to it and it became the camp-meeting hymn. "Say brothers, will you meet us?" In 1860 the same air was given to Republican campaign songs.

When Fort Sumpter was fired on the campaign songs, the camp-meeting songs, the street songs, among which was "Tell John Andrew John Brown's Dead," were fused,as it were, and "John Brown's Body" came into being. Mr. Matthews says this song was put together by a quartet of men in the Massachusetts Tigers, and the soldiers of the Twelfth Massachusetts Regiment sang it as they marched down Broadway July 24, 1861. They sang it incessantly until 1862, and by that time the whole nation was familiar with it.

The most popular war song of the South was "My Maryland." James R. Randall was its author. He was a native of Baltimore, but in April, 1861, was residing in New Orleans. From the papers of that city he read a highly colored account of the attack on the Massachusetts troops while they were passing through Baltimore. He worked himself up in a fever of excitement, and then wrote the words. Afterwards the verses were set to the music of "Lauriger Horatius," a favorite college song of jovial character.

Dixie was another popular song. It was composed in 1859, according to Mr. Matthews, by Dan D. Emmett, as a "walk-around" for Bryant's minstrels. Emmett had traveled with circuses, had heard circus men speak of the country south of Mason and Dixon's line as Dixie, and had heard them wish themselves there as soon as Northern days became uncomfortably cold. "I wish I was in Dixie," they used to say, and it was upon this that Emmett founded his song. In the fall of 1860 Mrs. John Wood sung "Dixie" in New Orleans in John Brougham's burlesque, "Pocahontas." Southern words to suit the tune had been written by Gen. Albert Pike, and the air was also used by Republican campaign singers in the North.

"The Bonnie Blue Flag," also came from the theatre. The tune is an old Hibernian melody, according to Mr. Matthews, "The Irish Jaunting Car." The words were written by an Irish comedian, Harry McCarthy. "The Bonnie Blue Flag" became at once popular, but was not so much sung as was "Dixie" or "Lorena," the Southern equivalent of "Just Before the Battle, mother." The latter was composed, words and music, by George F. Root, of Chicago, who was the author of "The Battle Cry of Freedom," and of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching." All of Mr. Root's songs were immensely popular with the soldiers, but the first favorite was probably "The Battle Cry of Freedom.',

Beyond a doubt the most popular war song of the North is "Marching Through Georgia." Probably General Sherman has heard it a million times. He thinks he has, anyway, for the bands play it wherever he goes—pretty much as "Hail to the Chief" is played wherever the President shows his head. This was written by Henry C. Worth, who was fond of reflecting the rude negro rhythms and was familiar with the songs of the cotton field and levee. Mr. Matthews says, however, that "Marching Through Georgia" was not founded on a negro air, and he regards the tune as new and fresh and spirited, "the chief musical legacy of the war."

"We Are Coming, Father Abraham, Three Hundred Thousand More," appeared originally in the New York Evening Post, and as the author's name was not given the public believed for a time that William Cullen Bryant wrote it. But its author was John S. Gibbons, a Quaker, who, so Mr. Matthews says, had a "reasonable leaning toward wrath in cases of emergency." The famous war song, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," was written by P. S. Gilmore. Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was written, Mrs. Howe says, in the dim twilight of the early morning after a night given to thought of the subject, in which the lines were gradually worked out. The title was given to it by James T. Fields of the Atlantic Monthly.—[Rochester Post-Express.

PROFESSIONAL SPIES.

A Calling That Was Considered Infamous by the Ancients.

Although the changes wrought by time and social progress has elevated into respectability many professions anciently regarded as infamous, and converted into mere baseless prejudices, objections once by no means without foundation, some are still honestly and wholesomely detested.

That of a spy, for instance. Involving ideas of deceit, lying and treachery, with which it is but too often associated, it is at least tolerated as a disagreeable necessity. No man or woman like to be called a spy, and to be regarded as a professional spy is to be infamous all the world over.

The purpose of the spy is not that of the detective, who is secret and watchful, but not necessarily treacherous. A genuine spy makes it his heartless and cruel business to win confidence only to betray it—to enjoy hospitality as a guest, that he may bring down ruin upon his host and misery upon his family. He professes friendship to those he is anxious to disgrace, and affection where his only intentions are those of cold blooded malignity. What could be more vile or base?

And yet spies of the very worst type have existed in all classes of Society and in all times. In Russia to this day there are men asd women of the highest rank who are not ashamed to act as spies, secretly engaged by the chiefs of police and others who do such dirty work as amateurs merely to serve political ends, these of the Government or those of the secret assassins, called Nihilists.

While the Bourbons were on the French throne, and all through the reigns of Napoleon the Great and Napoleon the Little, spies abounded. In Austria they were for many years not less abundant, and also in Italy. Nor [illegible] to be found travel to other lands in pursuit of the victims, plotting and scheming to get them within their craftily created toils. Even their employers regard them with suspicion, and those they most benefit are often those who regard them with the greatest contempt and disgust. In the reign of Louis XVIII. the Duc Decazes was once attacked, as head of the Parisian police, by a member of the Chamber of Deputies, who pointed out as disgraceful to his department and the Government the vile characters he employed as spies for detecting crime. The Duc replied sarcastically: "Show me the honest men who will undertake their duties and I will promise to employ them!" The retort was a crusher, to which the Deputy had no reply, for spies were then regarded as absolute State necessities.

During the last French Empire you could not venture even in any private assembly and utter safely any polltical opinion, if they chanced to be antagonistic to the Government, and it is said that this policy was but a continuance of that adopted during the latter part of the reign of King Louis Philippe, when a complete network of espoinage surrounded every social circle and had its representative in almost every home. It was said that no reunion private or public, composed of more than a certain number of people, ever took place in Paris without the cognizance and surveillance of the police. No matter what the rank or the position of the giver of a feast might be, he was commanded to forward a certain number of tickets to the Prefecture for guests who were sure to arrive. courteous in manner, fashionable in dress and apparently highly educated and very agreeable men and women of the very highest respectability, but spies every one.—[London Tid-Bits.

His Pride Took a Tumble.

It was a Western engineer who told the following story of himself:

One day our train stopped at a small station in Indiana, and I observed two green-looking countrymen in "homespun" curiously inspecting the locomotive and occasionally giving vent to expressions of astonishment. Finally one of them approached and said:

"Stranger, are this 'ere an injine?"

"Certainly. Did you ever see one before?"

"No, never seen one o' the critters afore. Me an' Bill comed down t' the station purpose to see one. That's the b'iler, ain't it?"

"Yes, that is the boiler."

"What you call that place you're in?"

"This we call a cab."

"An' this big wheel—what's this fur?"

"That's the driving-wheel."

"That big thing on top I s'pose is the chimley?"

"Precisely."

"Be you the engineer what runs the machine?"

"I am," I replied, with self-complacency.

He eyed me closely for a moment, then turning to his companion, said: "Bill, it don't take much of a man to be a engineer, do it?"—[Youth's Companion.

The latest drink, and the one that is all the rage in Saratoga, is the "Philadelphia cooler." It was first made by Bartender A. D. Kibbe, who has mixed beverages at the United States for fourteen years, but it can be got at either of the three other first-class bars. As it is made of champagne, and costs something like a dollar a drink, it fitly represents the two main characteristics of the season—champagne drinking and extravagant pleasures. There never was so much money on tap at Saratoga as at present, and the interest taken in champagne by the drinkers is phenomenal. With the King of the Dudes backing one brand, Monsieur Lippa treating to another, and a private individual rushing his favorite simply because he believes it better than any other and does not want the fact overlooked, there has been enough wine opened to float a ship. The drink called the Cooler is prepared by half filling two glasses with cracked ice, putting in a little mint and two lumps of sugar, pouring half a pint of champagne on top, and squeezing the mint with a crusher or mixer until its essence pervades the champagne. After a night spent in drinking coolers, the average dude can find his way to bed—if one of the porters steers him correctly.

Encores.

The encore nuisance, thanks to the firmness displayed by certain prominent artists. has been greatly abated in England, but here in America it appears to be on the increase.

Nothing is more gratifying to an artist than to receive the assurance of the audience that his performance has afforded satisfaction, and for this reason the compliment of a recall is peculiarly acceptable. But it is altogether a different matter when he is called upon with undeniable persistency to repeat an exacting solo, involving, perhaps, much physical exertion. Moreover, he is perfectly aware when complying with this unreasonable demand that the audience will not display the same amount of appreciation at the conclusion of his repeated task as they have already manifested, the interest on both sides naturally having abated by the lengthened demands made on their mental powers.

By such means, the artist is fatigued and disappointed; and his sensitive organization receives a shock, slight it may be, but nevertheless harmful to his artistic vitality.

A custom has arisen of substituting some other composition instead of repeating the work encored. This is a decidly objectionable practice, and, besides, implies that the artist accepts the demand for a farther display of his own personal abilities rather than as the expression of a desire to hear again the composition he has just interpreted.

Viewed commercially, it is also unjust to the artist. He receives a certain fee for specified work; and, as a reward for fulfilling his task satisfactorily, he is asked to repeat it without additional payment for so doing. The principle certainly will not apply to other cases. For instance, no wine merchant would appreciate the compliment of being asked to supply a second basket of Mumm's Extra Dry gratis, because the former consignment just consumed was so entirely to the buyer's taste. Nor would a painter, sculptor, or poet duplicate one of his productions without extra charge, simply because the originals had proved so highly acceptable to their patrons.

Dragonetti (the greatest contrabassist the world has ever known) was inexorable in his refusal to accept an encore; bnt it is related that on one occasion, after the public had insisted—vainly, as usual—on a repetition of one of his soloss and were still wildly applauding, he explained to the manager in his own peculiar cosmopolitan language, "Das I play encore, mais si paga encora?" The entrepreneur consented, and Dragonetti returned to the platform and performed his solo a second time. This was, however, the only occasion on which he ever did so.

Of course, the suppression of the encore fiend could be easily accomplished by the artists themselves, but there are many reasons beyond the ken of the uninitiated that render it most unlikely the majority of them will join in such a crusade.

In the first place, it has become the fashion to regard certain airs in oratorios and operas, as well as detached pieces, as stereotyped encores; and a singer who fails to secure one in such instances is often regarded as a failure. Then the publisher of a song finds that its sale is greatly enhanced if it is always encored when sung in public. Frequently, too, the vanity of the performer induces him to various devices, in order to secure the encore he deems necessary to maintain his position in popular estimation. Therefore, we are frequently horrified by examples of execrable taste designed to woo the ears of the public at large, such as interpolated cadenzas or a sustained note of great altitude and deafening power at the close of a song.

As long as this state of affairs is accepted, so long shall we be compelled to "assist" at the havoc wrought by the repetition of portions of operas, which delays the action and renders the situation ridiculous, involving possibly the resurrection of the singer, in order to die a second time.

Young artists also entertain an altogether mistaken idea as to the value of encores, recalls, floral offerings, and the other customary ceremonies attending their public appearances. When the question is asked if they made an artistic success, the reply is too frequently to the effect that they made the most extraordinary impression, were compelled to reappear and accept repeated encores, besides being the recipients of flowers in profusion. Such well-meant attentions on the part of injudicious friends do more to hopelessly wreck the young artists at the very outset of their career than can be well conceived. The same plan is adopted both in the case of the worthy and the hopelessly unworthy, and therefore such compliments have no significance; and, in the case of the former, the artistic instinct is apt to be blunted amid the distracting influences of such unmerited public demonstrations.

Encores are to be deprecated in every instance. It is far more stimulating to the musical palate to enjoy the remembrance of a single performance of a fine composition than to suffer a feeling of over-repletion consequent on its immediate repetition, which is a source of more or less mental fatigue to both executants and listeners.

A firm resistance to such demands is also conducive to the advantage of the artist, if rightfully regarded.—[Musical Herald.

Removing a Serious Obstruction Gently.

Dynamite and giant powder might answer admirably to remove obstructions from Hell Gate in East River, New York, but explosive measures in medication are ever attended with disastrous consequences. For instance, the bowels cannot be violently drenched with safety, nor is there the slightest nece sity for so doing. On the contrary, it is most unwise. None but the purblind adherents of antiquated theories in medicine advise or sanction such a course. To weaken the intestines—the effect of drastic purgation—is to compromise the health of the entire system. With Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, on the other hand, the bowels are relaxed, not by a convulsion of nature approximating to an eruption of Mt. Popocatapetl, but gradually, beneficially, without wrenching or drenching. The liver and stomach, as well as the bowels, are toned and benefited by it.

TAKE

LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. COMBINATION LAND CO.

SPECIAL NUMBER 3.

"Where yonder dancing billows dip
Far off to ocean's misty verge,
Plows Evening, like a full-sailed ship,
Adown the cloudy surge.
With spray of ruffled gold before
The scarlet fire that round her dies,
She sails across the drowsy shore,
Along the darkening skies.
Here, plunged in hollow, rolling brine,
In emerald cradles, rocked and swung,
The scepter of the sea is mine,
And mine his endless song."

If, as some writer asserts, "the mountains have ever been the home of freedom," yet the seaside has always been the nursery of intellect. The great poets, artists, orators, historians, statesmen and engineers of Europe and America have, with few exceptions, been born and raised within sight and sound of the sea. Those babies who shall have the good luck to be born at Lucadia will, in the next century, be famous, for Lucadia is to be the home of many artists and authors, whose children, both with respect to their parents and their birth-place, will be "born in the purple."

You cannot overstate the advantages of such a country—you cannot over-boom it. Here it is. It talks for itself with voices of health and of beauty; voices of healing and of life; voices of vigorous ozone and enticing balm; voices of Christmas roses and of oleanders and lillies blooming in the January sunshine.

Of course it is new; of course it is a little crude in some things; of course the Opera houses are yet to be built, and the system of sewage yet to be perfected, but if you are inclined to complain of these things just turn to the telegraph column and read: "Chicago, November, 1887.—The thermometer at the Signal Service office this morning registered 30 degrees below zero. A Minnesota zephyr is approaching at the rate of 80 miles hour." Then, again, we will have the Opera Houses and mansions and drives very soon, and we never will have the blizzards or the snow.

A blind man ought to be able to see that the tide of growth here will be like that of the Pontic sea, which "ne'er knows returning ebb." We have an exceedingly rich and prosperous people—overy sixty millions—and wealth has accumulated since the war even in greater ratio than the population. Money is a drug at 4 per cent. per annum. There are more people in the United States this day who are able to live upon their incomes, than there are in Great Britain, Germany or Russia. These people have filled Florida with costly mansions—habitable only for three or four months in the year, and they have lined the Atlantic sea-coast with summer cities, where the hotels and cottages are tenantless from October until June. They are now coming here and in five years there will be houses facing the sea, within a stone's throw of each other, all the way from Santa Monica to San Diego bay.

And of all these miles of coast no place presents so many attractions as Leucadia. The beach in front of it is better than at any other point, for the water shoals very slowly and the surf is very light, and for driving purposes there is not such a beach on the coast. It is a twenty-mile track in perfect condition, swept and sprinkled and graded by the tide twice each day, and the tide is the best and most economical superintendent of roads in the country. An abundant supply of water for all purposes will be piped along every avenue, and the little city will, within a season or two, be embowered in foliage. Leucadia is about two-thirds of the way to San Diego by the new road of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company, and will command the trade of the rich valleys adjacent.

There is only one other such place as Leucadia in the world. It is a little city on the Mediterranean, at the foot of the Alps, called Mentone. Sam Cox immortalized the spot in his "Search for Winter Sunbeams"; and at Mentone the conditions are not as perfect as at Leucadia, for once in a while the "mistrael" sweeps down on Mentone, and the landlord's coffers are depleted by the cost of providing fire for the other "coughers." (A horrible pun, but all tastes must be consulted.)

Lots in Mentone, 50 feet front, sell for 50,000 francs. Lots in Leucadia ought to sell at the auction, October 12th, 1887, for $5000 each, but the chances are they will go at a less figure.

If you want a home, secure one at Leucadia. You will never be able to do better. If you want to invest and earn three or four hundred per cent. advance, here is your chance, for there are plenty rich asthmatics, consumptives and bronchiters and blizzard-haters who will want Leucadia lots by and by, and who will pay any price asked for them; and Nature has limited the supply of such combinations of sea and shore, and soil, and sky, and climate, and their manufacture is not progressing fast enough to make it likely that the market will be overstocked during this century. It takes at least one cataclysm to lay the foundations of such a paradise as Leucadia, and about forty thousand years to bleach the mineral salts out of the soil so as to make it fit for orange trees.

We want those enterprising people who are here now to get the advantage of present prices. We are willing that those who come next year shall pay two or three hundred per cent. advance; and they will have to pay it whether we are willing or not. You think this is a boom, do you? Well, it is hardly the beginning of a boom. People will pour in here during the coming year by the thousands and tens of thousands. They will overrun shore and valley and mountain side. All such town lots as those at Leucadia will be snatched up quickly. Be wise in time and secure some of them while they can be bought for hundreds. After a while they will sell for thousands.

CATARRH.

THE TERM CATARRH IS APPLIED TO A peculiar disorder of the nostrils and adjacent parts, which prevails to an alarming extent, and is productive of very serious consequences.

The most prominent and characteristic feature is a morbid discharge from the head, varying in its nature at different times.

In some there is an almost constant flow of clear, acrid fluid, but oftener an offensive, purulent or muco-purulent, greenish-yellow matter is secreted, which accumulates in the nostrils or drops into the throat, necessitating its frequent removal by blowing the nose or expectoration, and often by both processes. Sometimes patients feel as though their head was in a state of rottenness, so great is the amount of matter discharged and so fetid is its odor. The patient is greatly annoyed by the constant dropping into the throat of the morbid matter from the head, and as a recumbent position naturally favors the flow downward his rest is frequently disturbed from this cause. Many sufferers are obliged to lie with the head very much elevated in order to sleep with some degree of comfort.

In others a tough, viscid and offensive phlegm collects behind and above the soft palate, in the passage between the throat and head, adhering to the parts with gluish tenacity. Its lodgment embarrasses respiration and creates a sensation of irritation and uneasiness in the affected locality, which gives rise to a constant and almost irresistible desire to relieve that discomfort by drawing the mucus into the throat so as to eject it by the mouth. This practice, popularly known as "hawking," is characteristic of catarrh, and proves as embarrassing to the one affected as it is disagreeable to those around him.

Again, the offensive matter hardens and deposits itself on the membrane in the shape of dry, hard concretions, which are discharged by way of the nostrils or throat in lumps or fragments of a deep green tint. In some cases these incrustations accumulate to such an extent as to form a regular plug in the nose, which obstructs breathing and produce serious discomfort. So firmly do these incrustations adhere to the point of attachment that their removal usually requires the most violent efforts; not unfrequently they have to be torn from the membrane. Occasionally a solid cast of notable size is expelled, on which there are generally traces of blood, but in some cases the cast presents a tubular appearance, being of exact shape of the nasal cavity. This condition is indicative of ulceration, which, in time, may destroy the bony structure of the nose and produce a subsequent flattening of that organ.

Cases are occasionally met with in which a thick, viscid, slimy secretion coats the membrane of the nasal cavities and then putrefies, giving rise to a stench which is really overpowering, and sufficiently fetid to poison the atmosphere of a whole room; and there are others in which all the secretions of the membrane are suspended, causing an unpleasant feeling of dryness, heat and feverishness in the head and nose—a condition popularly known as "Dry Catarrh."

The disease speedily extends to the air cavities of the bones of the forehead and face, giving rise to a distressing sensation of heavy weight or compression over the forehead, especially in the region above and between the eyes, and to a feeling of fulness, heat, irritation, soreness or pain in the nostrils near the root of the nose, as well as in the upper part of the throat, above and behind the soft palate. Sometimes there is pain obstinately fixed in some particular part, as in the temple, on the top of the head, at the back of the neck, or behind the orbits, and, occasionally, pain manifests itself in the face of so severe a character that it is frequently mistaken for neuralgia.

The breath is always tainted, and at times assumes an exceeding fetid and sickening odor. In some cases it becomes so revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself as well as to others.

The nasal membrane is thickened and conjested, causing the nose to be stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other, and often on both, giving rise to a disagreeable, stuffy sensation in the head, and occasioning violent and prolonged paroxysms of sneezing.

The voice is weak, indistinct and husky, or of a nasal character, displaying a sort of sniffing quality. Oftentimes there is a continuous hoarseness and discordance. There is also a sense of irritation in the part, and frequent attempts to clear the throat of phlegm, producing the sound "hem," more or less forcibly. In some cases patients complain of an uncomfortable feeling of fullness, or a choky sensation in the throat, and in others of a distressing and almost constant dryness, for the temporary relief of which they have to swallow frequently. Others; again, speak of a constant bad or nauseous taste in the mouth or throat.

The stomach generally suffers more or less and becomes weak and irritable: the appetite is capricious and nearly always bad in the morning. The patient is languid, unable to perform mental or physical labor with the usual facility, is nervous, depressed in spirits, at times fearful, timid, agitated and inclined to drowsiness and sleep, the memory weakened and permanent impairment seriously threatened.

The mucous membrane soon becomes morbidly sensitive to unfavorable influences, and in spite of the utmost care becomes affected from the slightest causes, so that at last a breath of wind upon the lining of the nose or throat becomes productive of a cold, and gives rise to serious disturbances of the respiratory organs. Thus the patient is subject to frequent and repeated colds, each attack aggravating the disease by giving it a new impulse and involving a larger extent of surface than its predecessor. In this manner the difficulty spreads from organ to organ, invading the throat, larnyx, trachea and bronchial tubes, until, encroaching further and further, it reaches the finer ramifications of the bronchi, when but a slight impulse is required to send it to the lungs. Catarrh may, and often does, affect other organs in the body, especially those containing a mucous membrane, such as the stomach, bowels, kidneys, etc.

By the employment of proper inhalations in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedy at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless the disease has advanced to the chest and that both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success. The very best references from those already cured.

The Grasshopper.

A grasshopper sat in an oak tree green,
Mending the shoes of the fairy queen,
For he was a cobbler of all the lays,
Yellows and purples and greens and grays;
As she sat on the limb of the old oak tree;
Oh, merry and bold and ever so old,
As I heard one day when this story was told!

A bobolink skirmishing over the way,
Called to the grasshopper, "Sir good day!"
And the grasshopper cobbling still at his shoe,
Answered politely, "The same to you!"
And nodded his head with a little bow,
Though I couldn't exactly tell you now;
For the prince of good-manners—the grasshopper—he,
As he cobbled away in his old oak tree!

"How much do you make by the day and the week?"
The bobolink asked with a flirt and a shriek;
"Three golden leaves of the buttercup's flower,
Three crystal drops from the latest shower,
Three sacks of meal from the pollen's best
That the elves shake off from the cowslip's breast;
And that doth keep me both well and good,
For I'm the boss cobbler of all the wood."

A barefoot boy, as he came along
Had loitered to list to the bobolink's song,
And shy a stone, as well as he could,
At the little boss cobbler of all the wood;
"You cobble a shoe!" he cried as he laughed,
"You're the funniest cobbler of all your craft;
Why, your leather's a leaf, and your paste—it is dew!
O, what a cobbler to cobble a shoe!"

But the bobolink answered with wrath,
As he peeped at the boy in the woodland path,
"Each one is wisest, and skillfulest, too,
That knows just the work that he has to do;
For elfin feet those slippers are best,
That are made from the tiniest leaflet's vest;
While Nature's leather seems fitted for you,
As you wear it still!" And away he flew.

ATHIRST.

Oh, the tinkle, tankle, tinkle, oh, the chinkle, chankle, chinkle,
Of the ice within the pitcher that I hear each blessed morn!
Oh, the glad and merry trebles, like a brook above the pebbles,
Where riverward it flows between the fields of ripened corn.

And nearer, nearer, nearer, comes the music ever clearer
Of the footfall of the bellboy on the steps of the hotel,
And my soul goes out in yearning, every other comfort spurning,
To the gentle ministrations of the boy that 'tends the bell.

Now he's coming, coming, coming, soon I'll hear his knuckles drumming
On the panels of the portal that doth let upon the hall.
Oh, kindly boy, be nimble—strike and clash thine icy cymbal;
Never can its frigid music on my longing senses pall!

Oh, the tinkle, tankle, tinkle, oh, the chinkle, chankle, chinkle,
Like the lapping of the laughing waves upon a golden shore,
Like a dream of fern and grotto—I shall buy a temperance motto
And hang it high and dry above my hotel chamber door.

Still marching, marching, my throat and lips are parching—
He pauses—oh, sweet minister! oh, angel straight from heaven!
I turn the knob in rapture—my hands reach out to capture
The pitcher—but it's gone—incarnate fiend to number seven.

AN AWKWARD INTERVIEW.

"You will—er—stay and—and meet Mr. Rochdale my dear, will you not?"

"Well, no, papa," replied Edith Lascelles, in a meditative fashion, "I don't think I will. You see, my position is a peculiar one. I have no hesitation in saying I find it a disagreeable one too. I suppose if I were like a heroine of romance I should feel a wild excitement and a strange thrill, etc., etc., at meeting the man who is to be my husband, but who is utterly unknown to me; but not being a heroine at all, these feelings are wanting."

"Of course, my dear," Mr. Lascelles observed, a trifle nervously, "you know you can refuse him if you like, but you are so sensible, and—"

"Yes," cut in the girl decisively, "and I shall lose five thousand a year, shan't I? Well, I tell you flatly, papa, I shall lose the five thousand most certainly if I don't like the man."

"Then you intend to let the money slip from you altogether. In plain words, you refuse."

Edith shook her head.

"I never do anything in a hurry," she determined, and a glance at her pretty, firm mouth bore testimony to her words; "but you did not tell me, papa, what induced Aunt Maria to choose this Mr. Rochdale more than any other person."

"She was in love with his father years ago. At least, I believe so, my dear, and so—"

"I understand," Edith's lip curled in a sneer; "delightfully sentimental and deplorably vulgar."

Two days later Edith found herself ensconced in the snugest corner of pretty Mrs. Dalton's drawing-room. She was very fond of Lucy; they had been firm friends in their childish days and Mrs. Dalton had the greatest respect for the tall, handsome girl who was so far her superior in brains. The last time they had met had been in Paris, when Edith was introduced to Lucy's husband, one of the kindest-hearted men in the world—a dry-salter, or a soap-boiler, or some such mysterious and consequently wealthy person—and to the golden-haired child, the very image of her mother and the idol of the household.

"You are looking pale, Lucy," Edith remarked, as she stitched vigorously at her work—she was never idle a moment.

Lucy suddenly belied the suggestion by coloring vividly, almost painfully.

"I am very well, dear," she answered; and Edith's quick ear caught the faintest trace of annoyance in the pretty voice.

She pondered a little over this, and by and by Mrs. Dalton rose hurriedly.

"You won't mind, Edith, if I leave you for half an hour, will you? I must go to Dent's; they have not sent home the things I ordered?"

"Let me go." Edith put down her work. "You know you have been out this morning, and Herbert does not like to see you tired when he comes home."

"Oh, the drive won't hurt me, and I would rather go myself, the people are so stupid. I know you won't be dull; there is a pile of new books, and baby will come down if you would care to have her."

Edith stared at the fire when alone.

"If it was not too absurd," she said to herself, as she recalled the nervousness and haste with which her friend had spoken. "I should imagine that Lucy did not care about my being with her just now. She made me very welcome, certainly; but she seems changed, and I don't know exactly where or how! Perhaps she is ill. She may say what she likes, but she looks wretched. If so, I am very glad I have come. She is an emotional creature, and would probably have become wretched and depressed while Herbert is away."

Just about six o'clock Mrs. Dalton returned.

"Is Herbert in!" she asked, as she threw off her mantle and untied her bonnet-strings. There was the faintest flush on either cheek that might have been caused by the autumnal wind, but seemed to rise from suppressed excitement.

"Decidedly, Lucy is ill," Edith determined as she replied in the negative; but she said nothing, only resolved that during Mr. Dalton's forthcoming absence she would take her friend in hand and doctor her. * * At dinner time Edith, watching her, saw the evident effort made by the young wife to appear cheerful and easy, and was surprised that Mr. Dalton did not seem to be aware that anything was wrong.

"I certainly shall not enlighten him," she declared to herself, "but I will see what I can do with Lucy when he is gone. Ignorance is bliss is such a case as this. Why, he would fret himself to fiddlestrings if he thought she were ill."

When the morning arrived which witnessed Mr. Dalton's departure to the North, Edith noticed more than ever that her friend was laboring under some emotion which was not unconnected, so it seemed to her, with excitement.

Edith withdrew to let the couple say farewell. As she went into the drawing-room her thoughts flew for the first time to her father and his marriage scheme."

"I suppose I had better write and tell the poor old man that I consent to meet Mr. Rochdale. It can do no harm, at any rate, and I can't possibly marry him without seeing him first. I will go home at the end of this week."

The first day of Mr. Dalton's absence passed much as usual. On the second, Mrs. Dalton drove out with her friend and child, and did some shopping. As they returned to the comfortable villa near Regent's Park they met a woman carrying a parcel in her hand, evidently bound for a journey.

"Why, that is Parker, is it not?" Edith said suddenly, "is she going away, Lucy?"

Parker was the housemaid at the villa.

"Yes," Mrs. Dalton murmured stooping with a hurried gesture to push some parcels on to the seat opposite. "She has been wanting to go home for some time, and I thought now Herbert was away it was a good chance to give her a holiday."

Edith acquiesced in this, and did not observe Lucy's face flush crimson and then fade to deadly pallor as she spoke; indeed at that moment they turned in at the gates; and Parker was forgotten.

The two women dined rather drearily, for Lucy was strangely dull, and Edith was suddenly attacked by an unusual and disagreeable toothache.

"Why not go to bed, Edith?" Mrs. Dalton suggested as the clock struck nine, and they were back in the drawing-room.

Edith felt desperately cross with herself. "A nice person I am to cheer anyone up," she thought viciously. She was more than annoyed that so trivial and painful an ailment should visit her when she was the possessor of so rarely white and even a set of teeth. She was not easily beaten, but after half an hour had gone, during which she had been too uncomfortable to notice the strange, restless manner in which Lucy fidgeted about, she threw up the spunge and declared for bed.

"Let me bring you some brandy-and-water, and it will make you sleep," was Mrs. Dalton's eager request.

And Edith was obliged to permit her friend to perform this charitable office and see her to her room. She bade Lucy good night, and after a wild desire to bang her head against the wall, drank the brandy without a shudder, and after a short while dropped off into a delightful slumber, in which every twinge of pain was lost. All at once she awoke with a start, and her heart beat in an uneven fashion; she sat up in bed and looked at her watch—just 12 o'clock; she had slept, then, over two hours soundly, and the refractory tooth was subdued. She was slipping her watch under her pillow when again she started; it had been no delusion; footsteps were passing down the landing. Like lightning Edith was out of bed and had thrown on her dressing-gown. Her courage faltered for a moment, for Edith was only a girl, and hideous stories of pistols and hasty shooting by latter-day burglars came to her mind; but it was only for a moment; then taking her candles in hand, she went as noiselessly as possible to the head of the stairs and passed down. All was still and from the flickering light of the hall-lamps she could see there was no one left as sentinel or spy; so she determined, not without a curious sensation at her heart, to creep boldly down, reconnoitre, and then go back and rouse the house. She made very little noise descending, and at last stood in the hall. The voice was still faint, and she paused to listen before proceeding. The next instant she was at the dining-room door, and had thrown it wide open.

A smothered woman's shriek and an oath greeted her, and a lump seemed to rise in her throat.

"Lucy," she said, in choked, hardly audible tones, "your child is upstairs and needs you at once."

Without a word, but with a face as white as death, Lucy passed her in the doorway, and the quick step up the stairs testified to the existence of the mother's sudden dread and pain.

The man left thus stranded was young, of a dark, handsome type, attired in evening dress.

He stared at the girl before him with a contracted brow, and looked, as he must have felt, wretchedly ill at ease.

"You, sir; whoever you may be, please leave this house at once."

Edith's hand sought the door for support; though she kept so bold a front her limbs were trembling beyond her control.

He looked at her young face, rigid in its contempt and horror, and despite his anger could not but admire her. She made a pretty picture in her scarlet gown, with hair dark and loose on her shoulders, but the admiration was but momentary.

"This is Mrs. Dalton's house. I am here at her invitation. I leave it only at her request," he answered shortly.

"I will ring up the servants and have you thrown out," she replied.

"And so compromise your dear friend," he said, with a sneer. "By all means- I am perfectly willing."

Edith drew a short breath.

"You are a coward," she said quietly; then, before he could speak, she went on, very slowly and with great deliberation: "Lucy is up-stairs; I am alone with you; the scandal, therefore, will fall on me. Now, shall I call the servants, or will you go?"

"By Jove!" he muttered under his breath.

He had never come across this sort of a woman before; his eyes just met hers, and, at the unutterable disgust and contempt in them, he was abashed; he took up his hat and sauntered out of the room without saying one word. Edith followed him and closed the door herself upon him; then, shaking like a leaf, she went into the dining room, extinguished the lights and then crept up stairs, feeling that for once in her life all her strength and courage were hopelessly gone.

The event just passed had lasted barely three minutes, but the result was none the less painful.

As she reached the upper landing she felt some one clasp her knees, and then crouch down at her feet, and all her nerve returned.

With her strong young arm she lifted up Lucy, who was weeping bitterly, and almost carried her into her own bedroom, and the rest of the night was spent in trying to soothe and console the poor foolish moth who had fluttered so near the candle, and by her aid had escaped; for before morning came Edith had learned all she wanted to know; and, save for her supreme folly and weakness, Lucy Dalton had done nothing to separate herself from her husband's life. * *

Mr. Dalton returned to his cosy home full of spirits, and Edith met him with as much light-hearted manner as she could assume.

"I am afraid you will never leave me Lucy's guardian again, Herbert," she said; "for you will find her rather shattered. She caught cold one day driving, and I have kept her indoors ever since."

She did not stay in the room as she finished this speech, but as she shut the door she caught a glimpse of Lucy's golden head buried on her husband's shoulder, and she was content.

"I think she has learnt her lesson," she thought to herself, "and now I will trot home to papa."

Mr. Lascelles welcomed his daughter affectionately. "I got your letter, Edith," he said at once, "and I have asked young Rochdale to dinner to-night. Does that suit you?"

Edith simply nodded.

Punctually at eight the door was thrown open and Mr. Rochdale announced.

Mr. Lascelles shook hands effusively with the young man.

"Edith, my dear—" he began.

But Edith did not move; she fixed her eyes on Mr. Rochdale.

"Papa," she said very distinctly, "I do not desire further knowledge of this gentleman; we have met before."

George Rochdale's face grew crimson, then white; he recognized the voice of the girl who had ordered him from her friend's house a few nights ago, though the first glimse at the tall, slender form in dainty evening dress had not enlightened him.

"Edith—" began Mr. Lascelles, alarmed and angry.

She took up her fan and walked to the door.

"Cousin Minnie will take my place to-nignt; I shall dine in my room."

Three minutes later she heard the hall-door bang, and from her window saw Mr. Rochdale get into a hansom and drive away.

Mr. Lascelles came up, for the first time in his life in a terrific passion with his daughter.

"You may say just whatever you like, papa," Edith remarked very quietly; "I know this man to be a coward and scoundrel, and I would not marry him or even speak to him again for all the fortunes in the world."

A SKETCH IN OIL.

The Greatest Gushers in the World—A Country Flowing With Gas and Oil.

Writing a letter from the top of an oil tank into which the odorous fluid is flowing at the rate of hundreds of gallons every minute, is anything but pleasant, especially when one contemplates the fact that

"Wash and scrub as you will,
The scent of that oil will hang round you still."

The derrick at Slaughterbeck well No. 3, is surmounted by a large broom which indicates that this is the largest well of the season. This claim is disputed by the drillers and owners of other wells, but the fact cannot be controverted that No. 3 is a gusher and no mistake.

When a Blade reporter reached the Slaughterbeck well, it was deserted, but a roar sounding like that of a distant waterfall fell upon his ear. Prospecting, he found that the door to the temporary oil shanty which covered the tanks had been left unlocked, and mounting a score of slippery stairs to the top of the tanks, a peep into the oil cataract was obtained.

Imagine if you can a circular cistern as large as a good-sized house, and you have a faint idea of an oil tank. The tank rests upon the surface of the ground, and may be located in a wheat field, in a forest, in a ditch—anywhere the oil is found and the operators can obtain room to locate them. When the oil is flowing, not only the tanks, but the surrounding buildings and the surface of the earth is shaken by the force of the escaping petroleum.

Glancing down into the depths from the top of the tanks, the spectator beholds a spectacle to be remembered ever. The oil, which has the appearance and consistency of thin molasses, is churned and foaming with the force of the escaping gas. A stick is swept from your hand with a force like that of a mighty cataract. Overpowered by the fragrance and awed by the noise, you understand what a "gusher" is.

The Slaughterbeck well are located upon a farm belonging to an old man named Slaughterbeck. They are owned almost entirely by the Baumgardners and other parties in Toledo, and Hankey & Sands, of Bowling Green. The lands are situated in a typical black swamp forest, and land which a few months ago could have been bought for a few dollars an acre is cheap at any price, even though it runs up into the thousands per acre.

"Old Man Slaughterbeck," as he is called by the drillers, strolled out to look at his farm in the afternoon. He has the reputation of being a crank, but a man can afford to be a crank when he gets $3000 in three months as his share of a single well, and when there is room for a hundred more on his farm. He still dresses in an old brown suit, wears a straw hat and a long brown beard, and is very pleasant and kind to visitors.

SOME MORE WELLS.

The field is so large and the amount of work that is being done so great that it is impossible to give anything more than a brief synopsis of the situation all over the field. Indeed, when it is remembered that 250 wells have been drilled in Northwestern Ohio the utter impossibility of making even a passing mention is apparent to all.

On account of the low price paid by the Standard Company, and an agreement signed by many of the principal operators agreeing to suspend operations for nine months, no more wells are being drilled than necessary. In some instances large sums of money have been paid the farmers for an extension of the leases. The farmers in many parts of the country refuse to grant an extension. Often this is because they want work on the wells pushed, but more often it is because they think the operators will throw up the lease in preference to drilling. Between the upper and nether millstones of the purchasers and the farmers, the operators claim they are having a hard time of it, but refuse to throw up their leases so long as there is any hope for relief in any direction.

Near the Slaughterbeck wells are the famous Fulton well and the Produce Exchange wells, both of which have never ceased to supply hundreds of barrels of oil since the drills tapped the Trenton. Probably no oil wells have ever paid better than these two wells—even during the palmiest days of oil operations in Pennsylvania.

The Haskins well is a mystery yet, but an oil scout says that it is a good oiler though only a few feet in the Trenton, and that when opened up it will undoubtedly prove one of the finest in the land. The discovery of oil at Haskins extends the boundaries of the oil district many miles to the north and west, and makes the Ohio field the largest in the world.

The oil well, the pet of George J. Sherman, of Toledo, is located on Shanaberger's farm, nearly a mile south of Cygnet. It has already filled three tanks, and a line has been laid to Cygnet. This is the well that has been labeled Flicker No. 1.

The well on the Fanny Peters farm can fill four tanks which are located near it in an incredibly short space of time. It is owned by the M. & O., and the owners are confident that the Fanny Peters farm will beat the world.

The suspension of operations in the field struck Frank Losee, but he claims that when completed, it will be the "daisyest well in the lot."

The "lawyers" well in which Senator Dodd and Harmon, and a dozen more Toledo attorneys are interested, is still proving better than a gold mine or a good big law suit.

Said that the Fulton well, the well first discovered, is still belching out oil at the rate of 500 barrels per day. Here is the oldest well in the field with such a remarkable record, and yet the story is circulated that Ohio wells won't last.

Within sight of the Produce Exchange well are a dozen wells in about as many acres. Jake Van Neer, of Archbald, has three wells on the forty acres bought from ex-Governor Foster before the news reached Fostoria of the wonderful wells in that vicinity. They are all located half a mile south of the village of Hammansburg.

Directly north of Hammansburg the Vandergrifts own a 300 barrel well upon the William Hamman farm.

Northeast of Hammansburg, Hankey, Sands & Poe have a 350 per day well which is holding out beyond the expectations of the owners and drillers.

One-half mile north of Hammansburg, on the Auverter farm, the Michigan and Ohio Natural Gas and Oil Company have a well which filled an 800-barrel tank in eight hours.

On the northern end of the Auverter farm another well equally as large is attracting considerable attention.

Across the road the New York syndicate from Ithaca, N. Y., have on the Weir farm a 500-barrel well.

The Vandergrifts claim that the Chest Bay well in Liberty township, more than a mile from this well, is the best in the field. The well is closed up and no one knows now just what the well will do, but all admit that it is a great gusher.

On all sides of the Christ Bay well the M. & O. own leases and options, and they will speedily commence operations.

Just across the road on the Dan Mercer farm is located a 400-barrel well.

On the Sangler farm, north one mile, a magnificent well has been drilled in by Hankey.

The Whitehouse well already has 600 feet of casing and is not yet through the limestone.

The Sylvania well has been abandoned at a depth in the surface limestone of over 1000 feet.

Jersey City has an oil well which, at the depth of 360 feet flows 60 barrels a day. Both the Standard Company and the Vandergrifts have had their agents in this field for six weeks past leasing every available foot of territory.

The Wagner well at Lindsey is one of the best on the northern edge of the gas and oil fields.

The Farmers well at Millbury is still dragging its slow length along. The workmen have been fishing for tools for the last two months. Stockholders and citizens are becoming disgusted.

THE WASTE OF OIL.

No one who has not visited the oil fields in Northwestern Ohio has any idea of the manner in which oil is going to waste. It is the same old story of a lack of economy wherever there is an unlimited supply.

To-morrow if a fair price could be paid for Ohio oil, and the pipe lines and tanks could be made to care for the production in the Wood county fields alone probably 100,000 barrels would not equal the supply. And this could in a few weeks be indefinitely increased.

Manufacturers and business men in Toledo, who have been in the habit of paying fifty cents per barrel for oil for fuel, would open their eyes wide could they see ditches filled to overflowing with crude oil. In some cases small lakes of oil are formed in recesses of the Black Swamp, in which you can shove a long pole out of sight.

Everything is saturated with oil. Gather apples at some orchard near the road, and they are coated with oil. The cattle drink the oily water in the rivers and pools, and the butter and milk has an oily taste and fragrance Whole fields of corn, the leaves of trees, the fences and even the flowers are often covered with an oil spray, which makes a trip through the Black Swamp interesting if not pleasant.

The people of the Black Swamp are, by allowing such vast quantities of oil to run to waste, fixing everything for an immense conflagration. Once let a fire get started in this land of oil and the fires in the pine woods will not be able to hold a candle to the burning. Not only derricks and drillers and shanties will go, but farm houses, fences and whole towns are in danger of being swept out of existence.

This tremendous waste of hundreds of thousands of barrels of crude oil suggests the question, Is there no way to get this oil to Toledo and use it for cheap fuel in Toledo factories, which are now paying 50 cents a barrel for an article which here is almost as free as water. An angry producer says if the Standard company will not give him an outlet for his oil, that he will dig a ditch to Toledo and run the oil the city, independent of pipe lines and without the help of the Standard.

COST OF PIPE LINES.

How to get this vast quantity of oil to the city of Toledo for use for cheap fuel or for refining purposes, is a question which many are trying to solve, and which will be solved in the next few weeks by capitalists of this city or from the East.

The cost of pipe lines is usually greatly over-estimated by those who do not stop to figure the matter down to a reasonable basis. A three inch main will have a capacity of at least 10,000 barrels per day. Such a main can be laid to the oil field for a figure not exceeding $25,000. Allowing $25,000 for tanks and pumping stations the cost of the whole plant need not exceed $50,600. In case a refinery is built they would cost from $50,000 upwards.

Producers would gladly unite in the construction of a pipe line to Toledo. One hundred thousand dollars worth of stock, payable in oil, could be raised among the operators in a few hours. This oil, placed on the market at the market price in Toledo, would net a handsome investment for the builders of the pipe line, and afford the producers some competition with the Standard Company.

A TOWN OF TANKS.

Cygnet is a town of tanks. It is at Cygnet that the Buckeye Pipe Line Company has already built a dozen 35,000 barrel tanks, and will build without delay as many more. A few months ago where Cygnet now stands the wind whistled through a poor potato patch, and sighed among the trees of the Black Swamp. Now trees, potato patches, large clumps of golden rod and beautiful bunches of blue asters must all get out of the way of the tank men.

"The greatest gusher in the world," mentioned in yesterday's Blade, was next visited. Wonderful as are the stories told of other wells in other fields, this well certainly stands without an equal in the world.

The well, which is only a short walk from Cygnet, had been flowing at the rate of 250 barrels a day when Mr. Parker said "Shoot it," and W. J. Morrison, of Findlay, dropped the "go devil."

Never before in the history of the oil fields has such a result been achieved. The oil burst forth in a mighty volume and it seemed as if the fountains in the center of the earth had been broken up and were being forced up by an unseen and unknown force. Through four lines the oil poured, and the tanks shook and the earth in the vicinity of the well trembled. The thunders from the well can be heard all over Cygnet.

In less than one hour and a half the well flowed 500 barrels into the tanks, and this will give the "oil volcano" a capacity of 8000 barrels per day. The well is keeping up its reputation for being the greatest gusher in the world, and at the rate it is flowing now all the 35,000 barrel tanks at Cygnet will soon be filled from the "oil volcano."—[Toledo Blade.

THE DECLINE OF HOOPS.

Court Dress in the Latter Part of the Last Century.

By the end of 1787 hoops had almost entirely gone out of fashion. In England I find that at court the wearing of these precursors of crinoline by ladies attending the royal drawing-room was compulsory until so late as 1814, and one of the inducements held out to the Princess Charlotte—a rare tomboy who hated any restriction on her strong, young limbs—to marry the Prince of Orange was that hoop petticoats were no longer worn at court at The Hague. Perfectly plain skirts in all but wedding dresses seemed to have been the vogue in France in 1787-8, and the comparative exiguity of the gowns led to a corresponding diminution in the quantity of material required. In December, 1787, the Queen had a gown of grand velours noir, and six yards seem to have been the average of stuff allowed for the skirt of a dress. It must be remembered that velvets and brocades were woven much wider in the last century than is the case at present. There is one entry, however, of ten yards of green taffeta for the lining of a gown of green gauze; the taffeta was probably narrower in width than the velvet. The Marquise de Chastelux had only seven yards of white crepe for the petticoat of a grand habit with flounces. The really economical nature of the Queen is shown in an invoice for September, 1788, where she is charged trifling sums for shortening the ends of three muslin cravats and retrimming them, and for "doing up" an old petticoat of brown poult de soie. In December, 1788, the Princess de Lamballe paid ready money to the extent of twelve livres for a pair of Court cuffs of worsted lace, known in modern times as vak, a pair of sabots and a pair of "barbes" in black worsted. Almost simultaneously a whole bevy of court ladies gave orders for "sabots," "barbes" and cuffs of worsted lace. In January, 1789, the year of the Revolution, Mme. Eloff furnished the Princess de Solere with a sumptuous court dress of while taffeta, trimmed with satin and white jet, with a rich boquet or spray of roses and sweet peas, and, for a wonder, a hoop. The distended dress with its embellishments cost nearly 1,400 livres.—[Sala in The Fortnightly Review.

DAILY HERALD.

A POET'S SUMMER.

John Boyle O'Reilly's Seaside Home at Point Allerton.

Happening to be in Hull the other day, the writer looked in upon the quaint old home where John Boyle O'Reilly is passing the summer with his family. The average visitor to Hull, who gets no farther than the Pemberton or the yacht clubhouse, has little idea of the pictures queness of the locality where the poet has fixed his habitatiou. A walk there from the steamboat landing along the quiet road, which looks as if it might be way back in the country, after the view of the sea has been shut out, is full of interest, as one passes pastures and queer houses, which have grown out of their original shape and been touched with bits of color, which show the influence of the decorative taste of the summer visitor. Mr. O'Reilley's house is near the cove, which has such a placid, sheltering look, and, indeed, is a most excellent harbor for the fishermen's boats, as well as for the jauntier craft of the city people. There is a suggestion of the quiet haven upon which Ham Pegotty looked out, in "David Copperfield," in this placid cove, and the hull of an old vessel half buried in the sands adds to the impression which the first glimpse of the place gives.

From Mr. O'Reilly's piazza the view of this little harbor, and of the islands beyond, is exceedingly restful. His home, which, as is well known, is the oldest in Hull, has very interesting associations. There is fresh life for the old-time structure in the bright setting which he has given it, and which has added much to its picturesqueness. Its contrasting hues of yellow and black are accented by the grassy slope which runs down to the road in front, and which is decked with cherry and other trees that stretch their boughs near its shady piazza. The poet has lately placed in this verdant enclosure an interesting reminder of that aspect of life at Hull which is unthought of by the summer visitor, but which colors with its shadows the experience of the people who live there throughout the year. It is an old iron cannon which was taken from the bark Kadosh, that was wrecked off Point Allerton—the extreme end of Hull—a dozen or more years ago. This gun, which is mounted on a carriage, is one of two which the Kadosh carried as a protection from the pirates of the Indian seas, and its massive and frowning look suggests the execution it was capable of doing among those swarthy desperadoes. But the sight of the old gun awakened memories of the fate of the bark on the Hull coast in winter; for it happened that the writer had occasion to talk with the survivors of that terrible experience. When the Kadosh struck, the captain put off for the shore with the boat, but she could not live in the awful sea, and he and all on board perished. The mate's boat was more fortunate, but he and his crew had a desperate pull for dear life in that fearful storm, and

THE SUFFERINGS THEY ENDURED.

Amid the icy sleet and the waves that wet them to the skin, were such as to unnerve any but men of iron. It was the merest chance that enabled them to land in safety, and then they had to walk for miles through the deep snow to a place of shelter. Doubtless the old gun in front of Mr. O'Reilly's house would, in his hands, prove a most admirable subject for such a poem as he knows so well how to write, in which the adventures of the ill-fated bark would be set forth in vivid colors, and the pathos of the loss of the captain and his boat's crew within such a short distance of Hull would be deepened in his thrilling description.

There are other and even more impressive relics of the trials that have overwhelmed so many voyagers off Point Allerton in the head or stern boards of the various vessels which have been wrecked off this promontory. A few years ago there was a band stand in the road opposite Mr. O'Reilly's house, and on the octagon sides of this structures were the headboards of these vessels, bearing their several names, the whole forming a most impressive reminder of the experiences of these craft on this inhospitable coast in winter. Mr. O'Reilly was wuch impressed by the significance of this arrangement of headboards, and it has been a source of regret to him that the structure preserving them has been removed.

It was Mr. O'Reilly's original intention to erect a cottage at Point Allerton, the very place from which a view is had of the scene of the wrecks that take place along this coast in winter, but he changed his plans, thinking a less exposed and more accessible location more desirable as a summer residence for his family. His present location is within easy reach of Boston by steamboat, and it affords just the advantage which a busy journalist needs for rest and recreation. This summer he has his wife and children with him, and it is a very charming family that gathers under his roof. Mrs. O'Reilly, though not completely restored to health, is much stronger than she has been for years, and to have her at home with him is a source of greater gratification to her husband. She is a woman of remarkable intelligence. She has a keen perception of character, and in conversation she exhibits a readiness and felicity of expression which shows that she has her intellectual powers well in hand. She formerly had charge of a department in the Pilot, and it was her strenuous devotion to this work, in addition to the cares of her family, which proved too much for her strength. She still retains

HER LITERARY AMBITION,

And her bright eye indicates that her intellectual vigor is unabated.

Mr. O'Reilly has four children—all girls—who seem to combine the traits of her parents. Two of them suggest their father in appearance, having dark complexions, black hair and lustrous black eyes. They have been all admirably educated, and, in addition to their careful home training, they have received the discipline of convent life and culture. Blanid, the youngest daughter, has her mother's brown eyes and hair. She was named for the heroine of the poem which Mr. O'Reilly's dear countryman and friend, Dr. Joyce, left as his final contribution to literature when he died. She is a sweet little creature. Agnes, another daughter, has developed a remarkable talent for the violin. All these children have been carefully trained in what is so often lacking in our American children, respect to their elders, and a regard for the finer proprieties of life. They have not been subjected to such strict rules as to lose their natural flow of spirits which is so charming in childhood; but they have been taught to subordinate their own desires to a becoming respect that is due to their elders.

Mr. O'Reilly's life at Hull is such as one would expect from a man of his tastes and temperament. He mades his summer home the source of intellectual and social refreshment and diversion. In the days when he is not at his editorial room, in the Pilot office, he spends much of his time with his family, taking the children out rowing, or sitting on his shady piazza in pleasant converse; withdrawing when the spirit moves him to meditate on the humanitarian or poetic themes in which he is so deeply interested. He has in hand a book of apporisms on social philosophy, in which the salient ideas which have impressed themselves upon his mind during the course of his thought and observation on this subject are expressed in a nervous and compact style. The reflections, some of which have been read by literary friends, are wonderfully suggestive, and, although their full significance cannot be understood from a casual hearing, they arrest attention by their breadth of human sympathy and the vigor with which they announce those truths of primary and eternal value which have been overlaid in modern civilization by stereotyped conventionalities and institutional forms. Mr. O'Reilly's radicalism, which crops out in these sententious utterances, leads him, as the word implies, to the very roots of the relations of humanity to the social and political accretions which have been crystalized into governments and laws. From these grave considerations of the rights of man he likes to turn to the poetic themes which give in a world which is free from the prosaic limitations of an artificial civilization. To touch upon the natural emotions of the race, to depict the influence and course of love, and of the darker passions, and to dwell upon the glories of nature, is a delight to the poet, and it is noticeable that his verse usually has an underlying spirit of sympathy with the progress and development of man. His vivid imagination naturally flowers into imagery, in which outward objects mirror the sentiments and feelings of humanity. His poetic gifts being closely connected with his earnest and comprehensive interest in the progress of society, in the various phases of its development, it is natural that he should be frequently called upon for commemorative or other poems, appropriate for some particular occasion. It was while he was writing his Woodstock poem at Hull that he had the attack of insomnia that prevented his finishing it in season for that celebration. He has since fully recovered from this trouble, and to look at him no one would dream that he had so recently been ill. He appears to be in splendid physical condition; his face is full, his eye bright, and his flesh has that firm quality which indicates robust health. Exposure to the sun has darkened his naturally swarthy complexion, and the effect is very becoming to him. The canoeing which he practices in the summer months he considers the best of all exercise, as it combines muscular exertion with opportunities for observing nature in its most attractive aspects, and thus gives that stimulus to the mind which is needed for the best results to the whole system. Its great advantage over rowing, he thinks, lies in its freer play, the canoeist not being bound down to a seat, and moreover by his position facing the course of the craft, taking in all the interesting features of the view. The canoe, being light, can be taken into waters inaccessible to the rowboat, and one of the principal charms of this form of an equatic excursion is the landing in some sequestered spot and enjoying its isolation from the haunts of man. When Mr. O'Reilly and Dr. Guitexas took their canoeing trips they carried their boxing gloves with them, and on stopping at places where mill hands or other workmen had a taste for such sport, they gave them a touch of their skill, which often astonished the brawny sons of toil, who expected to gain an easy victory, and, instead, found themselves floored by the brain-workers from the city.

Another exercise which Mr. O'Reilly greatly enjoys is swimming, which he considers second only to boxing as a muscular exercise, and having besides the advantage of being pursued in the open air at a season when it brings delicious to the whole system. At Hull he does not avail himself of the facilities of the bathing house, but takes a boat and rows to one of the neighboring islands, where he can take his swim unencumbered by the artificial covering which has to be worn within view of the seaside cottages. He is a splendid swimmer, and is very expert in the effective side stroke, in which the two arms are alternately thrust forward through the air, and are brought through the water with a wide sweep, almost horizontally to the thighs. Mr. O'Reilly has become much attached to his old house at Hull, on account of its interesting associations, but, although he has done much to renovate it, he finds that so much remains to be done that he contemplates building an entirely new house on this site next year. To look at the great beams of this house, one would fancy them indestructible, and that time would hardly make an impression on their floor. As a matter of fact however, Mr. O'Reilly has been obliged to replace a good deal of the seemingly solid woodwork of the old house, which was crumbling away. The exterior would show no trace of decay, while the interior was little better than a mass of powder held together by stringy fibre. The window frames, which are in the antique style, inclosing small panes of glass, show this condition of things very strikingly. An indentation can easily be made in them by a thum or finger. As there is not much satitfaction in living in a house which may come tumbling about one's head without previous warning, and in which it is not easy to tell what parts are safe and what are not, Mr. O'Reilly's plans to take down the interesting old house and erect a substantial modern one in its place shows that he has the solid, practical sense which poets so often lack. He has some idea of building his new home of granite, rough hewn, from the Quincy quarries, but his plans have not yet taken definite shape. But whatever he may do about a future habitation in Hull, it is pleasant to associate him with that picturesque old place, and to know that he has become so strongly attached to it that he is likely to make it his permanent summer home. The place is so well suited for a man of Mr. O'Reilly's tastes and temperament, and is within such easy reach of the city, that it seems as if he was peculiarly fortunate in being situated where the poet and editor can find the needs of his dual life gratified.

Cement Sidewalks,

14 feet wide, will be built on 5th and Wolfskill avenue.

Changing Names.

A great many more people change their names in the course of the year than one would imagine. By far the greater number are ladies, who, for reasons perfectly satisfactory, effect the change by marriage. Then those of the criminal class, who periodically indulge in a new alias; persons whose cognomens are cumbersome or contain so many consecutive consonants as to be impossible for American throats; lucky dogs who inherit money conditioned upon the assuming of the donor's name, and those foolish people who are of the opinion that St. Chawles is a better name than McGowan or Schlapenhausen.

In bygone days it was necessary for an individual to apply to the Legislature for permission to alter his name, and the variety of reasons alleged was nearly equal to the petitions received. An easier method of changing an objectionable patronymic obtains to-day Instead of waiting until the convening of the Legislature, as formerly, the desired result may be accomplished by applying to the county court of the county in which one resides, or, if a resident of New York, to the court of common pleas for that city and county, specifying the name one desires to take and the ground of application. This document, duly verified, will procure one's heart's desire. The county clerk, during the month of December following the issuing of the order, will report the list of changes in his county to the Secretary of State, and this will be inserted in the session laws of the ensuing year.

The changes, as reported, occupy some four pages of this year's volume of law. It is interesting to glance over them, and in the absence of assigned reasons conjecture why a maiden, whose given name is Eliza, should desire to be known to the world as Lillie Eliza. Isaac Abromovitz found his name too burdensome and thinks Isaac Eisler to be preferable. The same reason will apply to Mr. Rudolph Kickenbush, whose friends now address their letters to Mr. Rudolph Voss. No right-minded man could object to C. A. Gosling exchanging that suggestive name to C. H. Graef.

As in every assemblage and at all times one meets our mutual acquaintance Smith, he is pretty certain to turn up in the pages headed "Names Changed." The Smith who is changed into an Arden, Smith who becomes a Dwight, Miss Smith who wishes to be known by her middle name of Urquhart, Thos. Bassford Smith who by a translation will hereafter sign his name as Thos. Smith Bassford—they are here. Emile Paul Motzenbecker will, if a business man, save a tremendous quantity of ink, not to say time, by dropping the "Motzenbecker." Many are the changes for convenience. Minzesheimer becomes Minzie, Lachiske to Lassir, Schleemuch to Slayton, and dozens of others. But the person to make the most remarkable change was, of course, a woman, and, like most women, of course again, she is a hero-worshipper. Here is the change:

Mary Jane Cleveland to Mary Grover Cleveland.—N. Y. Herald.

Effecual Treatment for Warts.

It is now fairly established that the common wart, which is so unsighily and often so prolific on the hands and face, can be easily removed by small doses of sulphate of magnesia, taken internally. M. Colrat, of Lyons, has drawn attention to this extraordinary fact. Several children treated with three-grain doses of Epsom salts morning and evening were promptly cured. M. Aubert cites the case of a woman whose face was disfigured by these excrescences and who was cured in a month by a drachm and a half of magnesia taken daily. Another medical man reports a case of very large warts which disappeared in a fortnight from the daily administration of ten grains of the salts.—[Medical Press.

If you experience a bad taste in the mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system like Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

"Isn't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks well now." "She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago, that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work and says that life seems worth living at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.'" Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this god-given remedy for female weakness, prolapsus, ulceration, leucorrhœa, morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections.

* * * * Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 10 cents in stamps. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The difficulty is not so much to make money as to save it. Resolve to save something. Frugality and foresight will do more than good luck in laying the foundation of a prosperous career. Frese's Hamburg Tea is the best family medicine ever introduced, and is the universal remedy in the well-regulated nursery. Its timely use has saved many a doctor's bill.

DAILY HERALD.

CHEAP LIVING.

How to Make Both Ends Meet for Ten Cents a Day.

At the gathering of scientists in Columbia college, a learned professor fascinated his superintelectual hearers by telling him that a laboring man "needs daily one-fourth pound of proteine, one-fourth pound fat, and a pound of carbo-hydrates" to keep him well and strong. If the knowledge-seeking laborer goes to the store for his four ounces of proteine his experiment will scarcely increase his faith in the marketing knowledge of scientists. What the laborer and what most of us need more than technical essays on the "Physiological and Fecundary Economy of Good," is a plain talk about sensible feeding and economical marketing.

"How to Live and Thrive on a Dime per Day" may stand as a text for this talk. It certainly can be done, and, though the experiment may be uninviting, it is certain that good health is nearer akin to the simplest diet than to the costliest.

Now as to the laboring man and his problems. Tell him that three-fourths of his weight is water, and to restore the day's waste he has to take food three-fourths of which must be water and the remainder flesh, forming heat-giving and bone-making substances, and he will understand the case better. Give him a table of foods, analyzed, to show just how much heat-givin , flesh-forming and mineral matter there is in each food, and he will soon take as deep an interest in what he eats because of its worth to him as because of his taste. When he finds out—as he can in half an hour—that only 24 parts of every 100 of butcher's meat count as flesh-formers, the rest being water, but that from 75 to 90 parts out of 100 in dried peas, beans, oat and wheat meals and cheese are nutritious, and only 10 to 25 parts waste water, he from that moment begins to use his common sense in feeding, as he does in earning his living. The popular rule is, never pay any heed to the feeding value of our diet; let us cultivate a glorious ignorance of the purpose of foods, and go in might and main for palate-ticklers, and devil take the dyspepsia! Pity he doesn't.

Thus a fact or two as appetizers. The great Peninsular and Oriental (the P. end O.) Steamship company employ East Indian coolies to do the hardest work on their steamers because they are stronger, healthier and stand the climate better than Englishmen, and because—not being meat eaters—their diet only costs 6 cents per day. There are miners in the English coal pits, the hardest workers in the land, who have not eaten any kind of meat for years. I am not a vegetarian, because I hanker after the flesh pots, and their savory odors cast a spell over my innocent soul; yet I experimented for one whole year without eating flesh or gravy in any form, and all the time my health was perfect and my weight increased. The dock porters of Constantinople carry heavy burdens, 250 pounds and upwards, more easily than the laborers of England or America, yet their main diet is bread and figs, and yet they are teetotal and vegetarian. The laborers in Spain live chiefly on bread and onions and are marvelously strong.

The flesh and blood superstition is quite as baseless in diet as in theology. A horse is almost as strong, swift, healthy and handsome as a two-legged man, and they both have the same internal machinery; the one eats beef and enjoys dyspepsia, the other avoids it and flourishes. Ten cents' worth of wheat, oatmeal, rice, fruits, buttermilk, bread, cheese, onions, or portions of several of these, will enable a man to do his ordinary day's work at least as well as any other assortment of foods he can buy for a dollar.

What would be a good diet for those who do not need to study their purses yet who would like a simple, healthy and enjoyable dietry? To such I would say drop the heavy meat breakfast right away. Not that meat is bad, but it is not the best to start the day on. It distends the stomach, indisposes us for head work and often leads to that other downright mischievous stupidity, the 11 o'clock beer or cocktail. The second evil is taken to cure the first, as if two black eyes are better than one. Bread (not the spoiled white stuff, but the natural dark-colored wheat as ground), tea or cocoa, eggs and the hundred and one non-flesh dishes, with a little fish and as much fruit as you like. That's a model meal, as experience will prove.

Talking of fish, the more the better. Pound for pound, it is as nutritious as flesh, though it dosen't seem to fill us as fully, and its chemical value is far above that of meats. When I have extra hard brain work to do, say an average of twelve or fourteen hours for two or three weeks at a stretch, I knock off meats entirely and eat all the fish I can. Result: perfect health and strength and no headaches.

For dinner, fish soups, (I am not excluding meat, though soups can be made without it that taste just the same and are quite as good every way,) puddings, dessert. If any one cares to prove for himself how little the flesh dishes on his dinner table are necessary to him, let him just reverse the courses, beginning with the fruit, then cheese and crackers, the puddings, etc. I warrant he will turn up his nose at the meat when he comes to it, end he won't miss it the least.

I knew an eminent lady who for forty years had never tasted meat. She was a marvel of mental and physical strength. Another author friend kept his health and his average weight of 160 pounds on a diet that never included meat, the average cost of his food being only 6c per day. Another, a well-known literary man, who looked as beefy as a butcher, was, when last I met him, in his eighth year of strict abstinence from flesh. Another friend, a hard literary worker, has been practically a life-long vegetarian, but he looks too shrivelled up to be a champion specimen.—[Globe Democrat.

She Stopped His Swearing.

There is a young man who travels for a wholesale grocery, living near Minneapolis, who is a very good fellow, but he has fallen into the habit of using profanity almost constantly. His charming wife tried a dozen ways to break him of the habit without success. Finally she decided upon a plan. He came home the other evening and remarked:

"It's been a h—— of a day, hasn't it?"

"What in the h—— has been the matter with it?" asked the wife, coolly.

He looked as if he had been hit with a cyclone. It required two days to break the young man of the habit, for his wife repeated every "swear word" he used in her presence. Now he doesn't swear even when he misses a nail and strikes his finger with the hammer.—[Troy Times.

What Ails You?

Do you feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless, and indiscribably miserable, both physically and mentally; experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, or of "goneness," or emptiness of stomach in the morning, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity?

If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, associated with Dyspepsia, or Indigestion. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. No matter what stage it has reached, DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY will subdue it, if taken according to directions for a reasonable length of time. If not cured, complications multiply and Consumption of the Lungs, Skin Diseases, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, or other grave maladies are quite liable to set in and, sooner or later, induce a fatal termination.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing, strengthening, and healing their diseases. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

BILIOUS ATTACK. DAVID G. LOWE, Esq., of St. Agathe, Manitoba, Canada, says: "About one year ago, being troubled with a terrible bilious attack, fluttering of the heart, poor rest at night, etc., I commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and derived the very highest benefit therefrom."

MALARIAL FEVER. Mrs. MOLLIE E. TAILOR, Cannelton, Ind., writes: "I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is one of the greatest medicines in the world. I gave it to my little girl and it cured her of the malarial fever."

Dyspepsia.—THERESA A. CASS, of Springfield, Mo., writes: "I was troubled one year with liver complaint, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness, but your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

LIVER DISEASE. Mrs. ELIZABETH J. BUSHWAW, of Sidney, Ohio, writes: "My little boy was so afflicted with liver trouble and other diseases that our family physician said he could not live. In fact, they all thought so. I gave him Dr. Pierce's Pellets and they saved his life. We have also used the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for throat and bronchial trouble, and found such perfect relief that we can also recommend it very highly."

DYSPEPSIA AND DEBILITY. Mrs. MELISSA ATWATER, of Steuben, Washington Co., Maine, says: "I was afflicted with dyspepsia, nervous and general debility, for which I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' six bottles of each. That was some two years ago. It cured me so that I have not had a sick day since. I had been in very poor health for a number of years, and took much medicine from physicians, but received no benefit from them."

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE. Mrs. MARY A. MCCLURE, Columbus, Kans., writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, being afflicted with liver disease, heart trouble, and female weakness. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared, I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am, after years of suffering."

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures all humors, from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Virulent blood-poisons are, by its use, robbed of their terrors. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-joint Disease, "White Swellings," Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES. Rev. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints, and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

Sore Eyes.—Mrs. SARAH A. TURNER, of Ogden City, Utah Territory, says: "My eldest child was cured, nearly three years ago, of sore eyes, being at the time nearly blind, by your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and following the directions in your book."

A BAD ULCER. ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y., writes: "The 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured my daughter of a very bad ulcer. Three bottles healed it up perfectly."

Goitre, or Thick Neck.—JULIA P. BECKWITH, of 407 West Gray Street, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "After the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' together with your good advice, my neck has now become perfectly well."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE. Mrs. IDA M. STRONG, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time, and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It has only been about three months since he commenced using your medicine. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION. Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "Mrs. ELIZA ANN POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Williamsburg, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the elbows and became so severe as to prostrate her. After being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine named above. She soon began to mend and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days."

MR. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

Fever Sores.—ALICE H. CRAWFORD, of Sioux Rapids, Buena Vista Co., Iowa, writes: "Six years ago I was cured of 'Fever Sores' by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. From its marvelous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "CONSUMPTION CURE," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all Chronic Diseases of the Liver, Blood, and Lungs. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

The nutritive properties of extract of malt and cod liver oil are trifling when compared with those possessed by the "Discovery."

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

LUNG DISEASE. Mrs. RUTH A. SICKLES, of Ocean Port, Monmouth County, New Jersey, says: "We have used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' in our family for the last two years, and find nothing else to equal it. One of our children had the pneumonia, and one lung became consolidated, but by the use of the 'Discovery' she has entirely recovered, and is now in good health."

CONSUMPTION. SOLOMON BUTTS, of North Clayton, Miami Co., Ohio, writes: "I have not the words to express my gratitude for the good your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has done my wife. She was taken with the consumption, and after trying one doctor after another I finally gave up all hope of relief. Being very poor and having but one dollar in the world, I prayed to God that he might show me something; and then it seems as though something did tell me to get your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' My wife took it as directed, and as a result she is so she can work now."

GAINED 25 POUNDS. Wasting Disease.—WATSON F. CLARKE, Esq., of (Box 103), Summerside, Prince Edward Island, Can., writes: "I would like to give you a slight testimonial for the benefits which I have received from your preparations during the past twelve months. When I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I did so at the solicitation of J. A. Gormile, druggist, of this place. He had sold me many other preparations, always recommending your 'Discovery,' which I did not take, owing to prejudice. However, I finally took his advice and your medicine, and have never been sorry for either, as I am to-day a healthy man, while one year ago I was not able to work and was a burden to myself. At that time I weighed 122 pounds, and to-day I weigh 147 pounds. Then I used to eat about one meal a day, and now can eat four or five if I dared to. After all these benefits, how can I refrain from adding my testimonial, unsolicited, to the thousands already in your possession."

Chest Disease.—E. B. NORMAN, Esq., of Anon, Georgia, says: "I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine for pain in the chest that I have ever known. I am sound and well, and I owe it all to the 'Discovery.'"

WORTH $1000 A BOTTLE. W. R. DAVIS, Esq., of Bellville, Fla., writes: "I have taken your wonderful 'Golden Medical Discovery' and have been cured of the worst case of consumption. I am now sound and well, and have only spent three dollars, and I would not take three thousand dollars and be put back where I was. I am endeavoring to have all my neighbors keep your remedies in the house."

COUGH OF FIVE YEARS' STANDING. Mrs. N. W. RICE, of Newfane, Vermont, says: "I feel at liberty to acknowledge the benefit I received from two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which cured a cough of five years' standing, and dyspepsia, from which I had suffered for a long time. I have also used Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smart-Weed, or Water Pepper, in my family, with good effect."

Raised Blood.—L. H. COX, Esq., of Wales Centre, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with pain in the chest, and raised quantities of blood and was unable to do any work for several months, but after taking three bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and several vials of the 'Pellets,' I am now able to do considerable work, and gain very rapidly."

LUNG DISEASE. Mrs. MARTHA OWEN, of Carthage, Jasper Co., Mo., writes: "I was treated for several years by some of the best physicians for consumption without receiving any benefit. Soon after I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription all the symptoms of consumption vanished. I wish also to report the cure of one of my neighbors who was a great sufferer from womb disease, and was permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

ASTHMA CURED. CARRIE S. STOWELL, Postmistress at Magnolia, Colorado, writes: "I feel that I cannot say too much in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' for I have found that it is of golden worth. It has helped both my husband and myself. Two years ago Mr. Stowell was afflicted with what appeared to be asthma, and our altitude being so high, the difficulty in breathing attendant upon this distressing malady was greatly increased. But he began to improve at once after commencing the use of your 'Discovery,' and was entirely cured by this wonderful medicine. As for myself, I have used it for nervous and general debility, and for an affection of the kidneys and bladder, and I found that it was without a rival for these complaints. We are now never without your 'Discovery.'"

CONSUMPTION. Mrs. W. H. NICKLIN, of Marlborough, N. Y., says: "When I first began taking your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pellets,' I was so weak I could not be on my feet but a few minutes at a time. They did me a great deal of good, and I take pleasure in expressing my gratitude to you for the excellent health I now enjoy. When I first wrote you I was said to be in the first stage of consumption."

DAILY HERALD.

FEMALE PHYSICIANS.

Their Success in the East and West—In the Medical Colleges.

Miss Harriet Post, a talented young lady who has been a practicing physician in New York city for eight years, Wednesday, in passing through Pittsburg on her way to the East after her vacation in her Western home, remained over a few hours and chatted pleasantly with some lady friends concerning women in the medical profession. "In the Middle States," said she, "the female physician has made but small headway; she is looked upon with suspicion, and in many cases as some wild animal to be severely let alone.

"In the east and in the extreme west it is different. In the west the female doctor, like the female farmer, is growing up with the country, and if she proves herself a woman of sense and understanding she is consulted in cases of illness, and her advice received with respect and followed with obedience. In the east, while not exactly on the same plane with the male practitioner, yet her skill is freely acknowledged, and her services constantly called into requisition. There are a great number of lady physicians in and about New York City. We have our shingles out, and we make, take it all in all, a nice round sum of money each year. One thing we do dislike though, and that is to collect our bills. But, looking at that in a philosophical light, the principal reason for disliking to collect bills is the fear of losing patients. No pun intended," laughed the lady, "or fun either. We send out bills with fear and trembling, not knowing whether they will work our destruction or otherwise. As a class we are conservative; in fact, we are forced to be. In cases of kill or cure none but the very bravest dare to undertake, because of the kill. A man rarely hesitates on account of the kill, but to us it ever remains.

"How do we get into practice? Well, our connection with a college brings practice to us. By the time we are graduated we have a pretty fair start, and all that remains is for us to rent an office and put out our sign.

"The medical colleges are more strict with lady students than with gentlemen. In the first place a good high-school examination is required of ladies before they are admitted. This the gentlemen, except in rare instances, may omit. Another thing, when a lady decides to study medicine as a profession, she goes to college to study and to work, while it is frequently the case with the male students that they are sent to such departments by enthusiastic parents to be made, and, in consequence, either play or study to suit themselves. Envious of each other? Not generally speaking. Of course it is not pleasant to see an old patient call another lady physician, particularly if one has cured at other times and not deserved the slight. Some of the female physicians in New York have made hosts of friends in a professional way. Some of them, after leaving the city and settling hundreds of miles away, are called to New York by some favorite child of fortune, who imagines that no other physician can fill the place of the absent one. All expenses are paid, of course, and a goodly-sized check pays for time and trouble. Lady physicians, too, are selected more frequently to travel with wealthy families. While this is considered by some as a bad thing for practice, yet it generally gives a physician prestige, and it is always a clear case of financial gain.

"One lady physician of my acquaintance in New York is the admiration of the male as well as female members of the medical profession; she puts through no end of work, and is a thorough business woman along with all else. She holds clinics at the morgue, delivers lectures to students, attends to a large practice, dictates articles for the medical journals, and has found her way lately into the pockets of a number of wealthy New York people, so a new hospital will shortly be erected with the funds she has secured. She interests everybody in her work, and is certainly one of the successful female physicians of New York.

"Ever expect to marry?" echoed the bright little lady. "Why," and the blue eyes twinkled with merriment, "what man in his right mind would ever marry a woman doctor!" —[Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette.

The Philosophy of Bedsteads.

Primitive and Oriental people lie on the ground or on a carpet, bed or mattress which is laid on the ground. Modern Western civilization is not satisfied with this; it demands bedsteads, with legs that shall raise the sleeper well above the floor level. Is any sound scientific justification of this latter practice discoverable? I think there is, and that my explanations will prove that the question is not so frivolous as it may at first sight appear. A very interesting paper was read before the Society of Arts on March 23d, by Dr. Percy F. Frankland in which, among other matters he described experiments made by himself and others, proving that microbia, pathogenic and otherwise do not remain suspended in still air; they fall much more freely than might be supposed from what is known concerning infection by poison germs floating in the air. Hesse's experiments show this clearly. Koch's method of testing for the existence of microbia in the air was to expose dishes or strips of glass containing gelatinous solid films. On these the microbia fall and find abundant nutriment, and multiply accordingly, forming colonies that may be counted and may be examined with the microscope. But this only indicates the numbers falling on a given arch, not the numbers contained in a given measure of air. To determine these Hesse used tubes about 3 feet long and 1¼ inches in diameter, internally coated with the sterile nutritious gelatine-peptone. A measured quantity of air was drawn slowly through the tubes, when it was discovered that the colonies were all at the bottom of the tube, and not evenly distributed even over the bottom, but were more or less crowded together at the end, where the air entered, and more and more sparsely distributed further inward, until the latter half of the tube was almost entirely free. The microbia had all fallen down in the course of the short journey of the air. The mold colonies spread all along the tube, showing that fungus germs float in the air, while bacteria fall. Other experiments show that in an ordinary apartment the questionable organisms are more and more abundant, descending from ceiling to floor. Therefore, the raising of our beds well above the level of the floor places us in a better atmosphere, so far as the microbia are concerned, than if we slept on the floor. This is especially the case if the air of the room is still, as is usually the case in the bedrooms of these latitudes. In rooms of the old Oriental pattern without window glass, the case is somewhat different. It may be supposed that, carbonic acid being heavier than air, there is much more near the floor than a little higher. Owing to the diffusibility of the gas, this, however, is not the case in any measurable degree. The carbonic acid we expire gets an upward start on leaving our lungs; the mixture we expire is, except in hot weather, specifically lighter than that which we inspire, on account of its higher temperature.—[Matieu Williams, in the Gentleman's Magazine.

The Ivory Room.

One of the most interesting sights in the warehouses is the ivory room. Here are lying by the hundreds tusks of elephants, tusks of wild beasts, horns of the rhinoceros and teeth of the hippopotamus. There are elephant tusks ten feet in lenght and weighing 150 pounds. There are hippopotamus teeth nearly two feet long. The elephant tusk, of course, furnishes by far the finest quality of ivory; and there is also a great difference in the elephant of India and Ceylon ranking the African specimen. It is only a question of time when the ivory trade will have to look around for a new source of material. The officer in charge of this room, a man about sixty years of age, said he had been there from a boy. He said there was a perceptable falling off in the supply every year, and what looked to the inexperienced eye like such an astounding collection was quite small as compared with what might have been seen twenty or even ten years ago. Fully if not more than one-half the tusk of the elephant is embedded in the flesh, and this proportion is greater in the root of the hippopotamus tooth. The tusks and the teeth are apparently of the same color all the length, and in their natural state seem very dark. Some of the elephant tusks were quite black. They attain the beautiful, clear line of manufactured ivory by bleaching. The upper end of the elephant tusk, which is solid, is much the more valuable portion. It is not so solid, however, but that a fine nerve extends to the very tip. The little aperture through which the nerve extends was pointed out to us, and the attendant said that through this nerve the elephant had the most delicate sense of touch all along his tusk.—[Baltimore Sun.

Press Opinions.

Mr. Curtis says that he has "a great gift of silence." The gifts of the world are very curiously distributed. A great gift of silence is much more needed by Mr. Foraker than by Mr. Curtis.—[Chicago Times, Ind.

Some of the Republican managers up the Hudson have settled it that Colonel Fred. Grant is to be nominated for Secretary of State, elected, and then boomed for Vice-President. He is to work in with the Bob Lincoln movement, and the ticket for '88 is to be "Lincoln and Grant." Two shadows of great names would be two much even for this reverential country, we take it.—[New York World.

"No man resolved to lead a good life can lead the life of a politician." Such is the remarkable assertion of the New Orleans Picayune. One of the most resourceful, experienced and successful politicians in the world bears the name of Gladstone. It is the general opinion that he has led a pretty good life. And the lives of American politicians will compare favorably with those of civil service reformers, those saints of the Chinese calendar.—[New York Sun.

"Only give the Irish enough bullets and then we shall have peace," is the latest announcement from John Bull. It may be true, but it's the first time we ever heard of striking an Irishman being conducive to peace. The administration of Irish affairs is indeed becoming humorous, but this is not the first time that the English government has proved that it doesn't understand the nature of the subject it is dealing with.—[Philadelphia North American.

The Montgomery True Blues captured at Plymouth, N. C., in April, 1884, the colors of the Sixteenth Connecticut Volunteers. These colors have been returned to the Northern Regiment, and Colonel Thomas G. Jones says it is done "because of the indisposition to retain any memento of a triumph of brethren over brethren." Will somebody kindly wake up General Fairchild, who has been dozing for a few weeks, or feel in his waist-coat pocket and get those three palsies? And will some one whisper in the ear of General Tuttle that now is his time to sound the bugle and get up a rumpus? The Southerners evidently want peace, but what would the Republican party do if the bloody shirt should be washed without their knowing it?—[New York Herald, Ind.

What is really most wanted is a weapon of such tremendous range that the human pismires, whose greatest endeavor since their creation has been to saturate this clod of earth with gore, dare not touch it off. Then the temple of Janus will be permanently closed, and all men content themselves with "shooting off their mouths."—[Louisville Times.

Sectionalism is in its last struggle. How strong it will be in its death throes the events of the next twelve months will determine. If the sins of the fathers who fought the civil war are not to be visited on the children, the sectional party will die with sectionalism, giving place to a party of opposition which will be national in its methods, issues and votes.—[St. Louis Republican, Dem.

To be exact, the centennial constitutional celebration, which occurs Saturday in Philadelphia, should take place next year, since September 17, 1787, the constitution framed by the Philadelphia Convention was only proposed to the thirteen States for ratification. The date of the effectuation of the constitution was September 13, 1788. That would appear to be the proper date to celebrate. Saturday's doings will therefore be slightly premature.—[St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Mrs. Cleveland has hit it again in her letter decling the invitation to present the New York flags. Whether she means she will not go where her husband is not invited, or intends to remind those who invite her that the President's wife is not "Mrs. President" as the President is "Mr. President," but only and simply the President's wife, with no official position, she is right. Every man and woman will agree with her in either case. It was a sensible thing to decline the invitation, and she has done it in a sensible way.—[Philadelphia Press, Rep.

One thing has been developed by the Ohio campaign, which has only been running a week. And that is that Joseph Benson Foraker is lacking in the dignity which should inhere in the Governor of the third State in the Union.—[New York World, Dem.

If there is in this country, a man, soldier or citizen whose soul is so twisted out of shape that he can't endure the painful necessity of looking into the face of a Democratic Chief Magistrate, let him hide his head in an ash barrel as the procession goes by. We have had enough of vaporing on this subject.—New York Herald, Ind.

The Republican leaders may be able—though we think not—to cheat their Presidential candidate into the White House as in 1876, or to buy him as in 1880, but they never will be able to lie him in. The average voter is too wide awake for that. The "bloody shirt" shibboleth of a revival of the Civil War and its irrevocably settled questions is nothing but an impudent, brazen, self-registering lie. — Boston Globe, Dem.

But it may be taken to mean that when the President has examined a question and come to a conclusion upon it, he has great spinal strength. In this matter he has fully made up his mind, and weak-kneed brethren may confidently assume that there will be no lack of backbone in his policy. All of which goes to show that an administration tariff bill has been outlined which will abolish internal revenue from tobacco, maintain the tax on whisky and lessen the taxation on food, clothing and shelter of the people, and that this bill will be pushed with all the influence, skill and energy which the Executive can command.—[Washington Post, Dem.

HONEST SCOTCH DRINKING.

Some Stories of the Topers of the Good Old Times.

No one alluding to the Scotland of the last century—"the eighteenth was the final Scotch century," said Lord Cockburn—could afford to pass over the topic of drinking. Now, we English have no right to be Pharisaical in this matter. There was a country house in the north where the host used to make his guests take off their shoes and boots at dinner; every bottle, when the wine had been drank, he threw against the door, covering the floor with splinters of glass, which made it impossible for anyone to leave the room, and nsuredi their discomfiture and probable conveyance to bed at a later period. But I fancy the Scotch must have been more than a match for us. In the first place they had excellent claret, and they got it very cheap. Wine was dearer at Rouen than on the Moray coast, owing to the lowness of the duty. Toward the end of the century the best port or claret used to sell for 8d. to 9d. a bottle in that country, owing to the prevalence of smuggling. When a cargo of claret came to Leith its arrival was proclaimed by sending a hogshead of it through the town on a cart. Anybody who wanted a sample had only to go to the cart with a jug, which was filled for 6d. Cellars were then worthy of the name, and wine merchants of to-day must look upon us as a degenerate race. The annual consumption at President Dundas', in Arniston House, was sixteen hogsheads. Lord Newton could drink six bottles of port without being affected. Lord Duffus clandestinely imported fifty hogsheads of claret to Barogill Castle, being guardian to the Earl of Caithness. Forty-eight he hid in a peat stack, two he put in his own house; he then wrote an information against himself to the revenue officer, and when he came showed him the two, said they were scarcely worth saving, and hoped he would share the last drop with him. Alexander Carlyle speaks of Dr. Webster as having obtained much respect among the clergy; he combined great strictness in religion with conviviality. Being a five-bottle man, he could lay his brethren under the table, never being himself indecently the worse for liquor. Smollett, Topham, Newton, Arnot, Campbell, all give prominence to this topic. All through Scotch literature tales of drinking occur, and Sir Walter himself did nothing to check the national taste. Colonel Mannering's visit to Councilor Pleydell is, as every one knows, a faithful transcript of real life.—[Murray's Magazine.

The Catholic University.

Mr. E. F. Baldwin, the well-known Baltimore architect, submitted the plans accepted for the theological department buildings, which are the only ones as yet provided for, They will cost $200,000. The buildings, which are to be of the Romanesque order, will be on the suburbs of Washington, and will be in the shape of an E, with the front of 265 feet forming the upright stroke of the letter. The centre of the front will consist of a building five stories high, approached by a brown sandstone arched portico. The entire buildings will be of brick, with brown sandstone trimmings, but Mr. Baldwin urges that bluestone be used, and the plans may yet be changed to include this material. The wings to the centre building will be four stories high, with a frontage of 165 feet and a depth of 45 feet. The three wings, extending back, will be 160 feet deep from the front of the house, thus including two courts for the admission of light. The roofs will have a high pitch and be slated. The central entrance will open into a hall fifteen feet wide and leading to a grand staircase in a stair hall twenty-nine feet wide. A large reception parlor will be on one side of this hall, and three rooms for similar purposes on the other side. From this hall a grand corridor will run through the entire building, both to the right and left. On this floor, in the wings, the various public rooms open. They consist of a lecture-room, with a capacity for 300 seats, three class-rooms, 25 by 28 feet each, refectory and kitchens. In the rear leg of the center wing is the chapel, raised a half story above the ordinary level of the first floor. This will give room for a large recreation room and library beneath the chapel. The chapel itself will have a nave 26 feet by 60, with a semi-circular apse or sanctuary in the end 18 by 26 feet in size. There will be eight side chapels 8 by 10 feet. A gallery will be in the nave end.

The three upper floors of the building will be devoted to the living rooms for twelve professors and sixty-four students, who will each have a bed-chamber and sitting-rooms. The building will be somewhat plain, but will be relieved in the brick work by terra cotta panels and cornices. The stairway and hall will be finished in hard wood. A fire-proof stairway will be added to the end of the wings, and a broad piazza will run around the entire inner portion of the rear wings, which will look out over the garden which will be made there.

LETTER FROM THE POPE.

The following is the brief addressed to Cardinal Gibbons from Pope Leo XIII, confirming the plans of the university:

"It has been the glory of the pastors of the church, and especially of the supreme pontiffs, earnestly to promote true knowledge, and studiously to provide that in her schools the sciences, and especially those of theology and philosophy, should be taught in conformity with divine faith, so that the forces of revelation and reason combined should form an invincible bulwark of faith. Hence our predecessors, always ardently solicitous for the education of Christian people in the past, spared no pains nor labor to found in the principal cities of Europe those celebrated institutions of learning.—that is to say, those universities which, in the middle ages and in the centuries following, enriched church and State with multitudes of men of learning.

"The importance of a university is made manifest by the dangers to which youth is exposed in European countries in our days; and your own acquaintance with the condition of things in North America cannot but have convinced you likewise of its very grave moment. For the unlimited license of thought and of writing, to which erroneous notions concerning both divine and human things have given rise not only in Europe, but also in your country, has been the root and source of unbridled opinions; while on the other hand, with religion banished to a great extent from the schools, wicked men audaciously strive, by the craft of fallacious wisdom, to extinguish the light of faith in the minds of the young, and to enkindle therein the flames of irreligion. Wherefore it is necessary that youth be nourished more carefully with sound doctrine, and that those young men especially, who are being educated for the church, should be fully armed to fit them for the task of defending the Catholic faith.

We, therefore, most earnestly welcome and heartily approve your project for the erection of a university, moved as you are by a desire to promote the welfare of all and the interests of your illustrious republic. But in order that this noble institute may be happily established and conducted to ever-increasing prosperity it must remain under the authority and protection of all the bishops of the country in such a way that its whole administration shall be directed by them through certain bishops selected for that purpose, whose right and duty it shall be to regulate the system of study, to make rules of discipline, to select the professors and other officials of the university and to ordain whatever else pertains to its best government. And it is fitting that whatever shall be established concerning all these things shall be presented to this apostolic see for its approval. But as to the choice of the city in which the university is to be erected we desire that council be taken with all the bishops of the United States, and that the question be decided after the opinion of all has been asked.

"Go on, therefore, beloved son, together with all our other venerable brethren, the bishops of the United States, to carry to perfection with one mind what you have begun, and let not any one of you be deterred by any difficulty or labor, but let all take courage from the assured hope that they will receive an abundant return for their cares and solicitudes, having laid the foundation of an institute destined to provide the Church with worthy ministers for the salvation of souls and the propagation of religion, and to give the republic her best citizens.

LEO XIII, Pope.

Cold Coffee is a Good Thing.

The boys of the National Guard, who have spent their week in camp at Peekskill, declare that cold coffee is the most sustaining and the safest of drinks. In speaking of the matter with the surgeon of one of the regiments recently a reporter was told that for the tourist and sportsman cold coffee was quite as good as for the marching soldier. "Yo see," said the surgeon, "in places where food is scarce or bad, coffee prevents typhus fever by counteracting rapid waste of the tissues. There is no more dangerous internal waste than that caused by fatigue, inasmuch as the vitality is too low to throw it off, and thus all the living stuff in the body is poisoned by what is dead. I have seen persons suffering from symptoms of violent poisoning before now, simply because they had walked more than their strength would bear. In point of fact they were poisoned, but merely because they could not get rid of wasted tissues. If tourists, laboring men, soldiers, pedestrians, excursionists, and all persons out on holiday trips, would fill up their flasks with cold coffee instead of drinking of water, they would never be troubled by a rapid using up of their bodies."—[New York Mail and Express.

The Telephone in Egypt.

Telephone communication is to be established between Cairo and Alexandria. The charges will be five piastres (about 25 cents) for five minutes use of the instrument, and if the enterprise is successful, other Egyptian cities are to enjoy the benefits of the telephone. The Egyptian Government reserves to itself 30 per cent, of the net gain of the Telephone Company.

Removing a Serious Obstruction Gently.

Dynamite and giant powder might answer admirably to remove obstructions from Hell Gate in East River, New York, but explosive measures in medication are ever attended with disastrous consequences. For instance, the bowels cannot be violently drenched with safety, nor is there the slightest necessity for so doing. On the contrary, it is most unwise. None but the purblind adherents of antiquated theories in medicine advise or sanction such a course. To weaken the intestines—the effect of drastic purgation—is to compromise the health of the entire system. With Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, on the other hand, the bowels are relaxed, not by a convulsion of nature approximating to an eruption of Mt. Popocatapetl, but gradually, beneficially, without wrenching or drenching. The liver and stomach, as well as the bowels, are toned and benefited by it.

FACTS ABOUT FULLERTON.

Fullerton is a town site on the San Diego division of the Santa Fé Railroad, twenty-three miles southwest of Los Angeles and three miles north of Anaheim. It is a regular station on that railway and all trains will stop there.

ADVANTAGES.

Fullerton has the most productive country tributary to it of any new town site laid out in Southern California; the country around is noted for its fertile soil and the great abundance of water. The water is derived from the Anaheim ditch, which, as is well known, is the most copious supply in Southern California. Oranges grow to the greatest perfection. The famous Gilman ranch adjoins the town site of Fullerton. The Gilman place is the "show" walnut grove in the State, visitors being taken there from all parts of the country and shown it as a sample of what can be done in the way of having a perfect walnut grove. Oranges and limes from this section are noted throughout the State as being the finest produced anywhere, and commanding the top market price.

Land in the vicinity of Fullerton is still at a very reasonable figure, as the country is comparatively little known, being at present out of the way of the general line of travel. With the advent of the Santa Fé Railroad, which is expected within ninety days, property will advance very materially, as it will then first be introduced to many seeking productive land at lower prices than that asked for in and about Pasadena.

OSTRICHES.

The original and largest ostrich farm is only one mile from the town, and is a great source of interest to tourists. One hundred ostriches may be counted.

COMMONWEALTH AVENUE

runs through the center of the town, one hundred feet wide and ten miles long. This will be one of the finest avenues in the Southern country. Lined with umbrageous shade-trees, and the soil is naturally adapted to road-making, packing as hard as asphalt, and never dusty or muddy.

ASPHALTUM.

Immense deposits of oil and asphaltum occur in the neighborhood.

PRICES OF LAND.

Ordinary land without water can be purchased for from $75 to $200 per acre; best land with water at $350 to $700 per acre, and there is but little doubt that all this land will sell readily at $1000 per acre within six months from date.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE TOWN OF FULLERTON.

A $25,000 hotel is now in course of erection and will be finished within ninety days; two other $10,000 brick buildings are now contracted for and will be finished within the same time. A bank with $100,000 capital is incorporated, and will put up a $15,000 pressed-brick building immediately. Quite a number of houses are now in course of construction and many lots have been sold conditionally upon brick buildings being erected thereon immediately.

A cement sidewalk six feet wide is now being laid upon all the principal streets; water piped in heavy iron pipes and under good pressure through the streets.

PRICES OF LOTS.

Lots range in price from $150 to $700; all streets are graded and there is not an undesirable lot in the entire town site, as the ground is perfectly level, with a slight fall from the foothills.

SOIL.

The soil is a fine sandy loam which neither gets muddy nor dusty.

CLIMATE.

Fullerton being but eight eight miles from the ocean, gets the sea breeze much sooner than towns on the other side of the foothill, thus producing a low temperature in summer, and at the same time the proximity to the ocean causes a more equal and warmer temperature in winter.

Fullerton has the best soil, the best water, the best climate, the largest and most productive territory tributary to it, the best railroad facilities, and there is more cash being expended in it on permanent improvements than on any new town in Southern California.

For prices of town lots and acre property, inquire of WILSHIRE & CO.

The Old Mill.

Here from the brow of the hill I look
Through the lattice of boughs and leaves
On the old gray mill with its gambriel roof,
And the moss on its rotting eaves.
I hear the clatter that jars the walls
And the rushing water's sound;
And I see the black floats rise and fall
As the wheel goes slowly round.

I rode there often when I was young,
With my grist on the horse before,
And talked with Nellie, the miller's girl,
As I waited my turn at the door.
And while she tossed her ringlets brown,
And flirted and chatted so free,
The wheel might stop or the wheel might go—
It was all the same to me.

'Tis twenty years since last I stood
On the spot where I stand to-day,
And Nellie is wed and the miller is dead,
And the mill and I are gray.
But both, till we fall into ruin and wreck,
To our fortune of toil are bound,
And the man goes and the stream flows,
And the wheel goes slowly round.
—[Boston Beacon.

Her Waiting Eyes.

Her waiting eyes, so deep and true,
Have searched the tender twilight through—
The opal twilight, dim and sweet,
Where day and night embracing meet
At eve in one short interview.

The fireflies glance, a fairy crew,
The sighing breezes softly sue,
The casement roses all entreat
Her waiting eyes.

In vain the blossoms brim with dew,
Unseen the elf lights cross her view;
The zephyrs ebb above the wheat—
For down the mossy sylvan street
A lover swiftly comes to woo
Her waiting eyes.
—GEORGE ROBERTS.

CHIPETA'S CAREER.

Once Queen of the Utes and Now a Hunted Squaw.

Among the squaws accompanying Colorow in his peripatetic journeyings about the White River country is Chipeta, the wife of the lamented Ouray, the late head chief of the Ute Nation. The career of this woman is beyond anything yet written; even Fenimore Cooper, in his description of the romance of aboriginal life, falls far short of anything like it in his character sketches. Following Ouray's election to the chieftainship, the first official act he was called upon to consider was the advisability of a removal of his tribe from the mountains of Colorado to Utah, and in connection with a proposed treaty between the United States and the Ute Nation he was summoned to Washington. On his trip he was accompanied by his wife. Both he and Chipeta had in a measure adopted the dress of civilized life. They owned their own ranch, their herds fed upon their own pasture, and in essentials lived as white people and enjoyed the comforts of civilized life. These facts preceded the chief and his consort to Washington, and with all the romance of their wild mountain life clinging about them, added to the heritage of an ancient and warlike lineage, they were received with open arms by the high social circles of the capital city. Everywhere they were feted and the doors of the mansions at the West End swung inward at their approach.

Chipeta was idolized. She was clothed in silk, her raiment was the fancy of the best Eastern dressmakers, and the tawdry finery associated with a life of savagery was conspicuous by its absence. The illustrated journals took the cue, and the wife of Ouray became libeled throughout the breadth of the land by the pencils of special artists. She was the rage for the season she was in Washington, and the epistolary correspondence from attaches of the English legation to the court journals at London referred to her as a "Mountain Princess," and bespoke for her a hearty reception from the peerage of England should she visit that country, which she at that time actually contemplated. As souvenirs of her visit to Washington Chipeta carried away with her quantities of silver plate, a portion of which was presented to her by the Government through the Interior Department.

Shortly after his visit to Washington and the consummation of the treaty Ouray died. He was sincerely mourned by his people, and as an indication of their grief, and in conformity with long-established custom, the horses of the dead man were led up to the grave and one by one shot. All that was valuable in earthly existence was to accompany him to the happy hunting ground of his race—all but Chipeta; and she, too, would probably have accompanied her liege lord had she lived a couple of centuries ago. As it was, the custom of her tribe, by the greatness of her exalted position, condemned her to a life of perpetual widowhood. Any deviation from this unwritten law would draw down upon her head the maledictions of the entire nation, and she would become an outcast, a pariah among her people.

But Chipeta had a will of her own. She had tasted of the privileges which her Caucasian sisterhood enjoyed, and when the opportunity occurred to marry a handsome buck she did so, not stopping to consider the great fall thereby in the social scale. As might have been expected, the head men of the nation, with unanimity and decision, condemned both her and her husband to ostracism. They had both violated a sacred law of social government and they must suffer. With her new alliance she turned her back on civilized life in every form. Her silks and satins were discarded, and even her plate was melted down to make gegaws for her husband's friends. Her stock was taken from her and reverse followed reverse till she was absolutely forced beyond the line of tribal kinship, and she with her husband became a wanderer.

This doubtless was hurried by the unfortunate mistake which she had made in locating a ranch on the new reservation. It was an excellent site. There was plenty of water and buffalo, mesquit and grama grasses gave nourishment to the stock. When the lines were made dividing Utah from Colorado, it was found that Chipeta's ranch was on the wrong side of the line, and not in the reservation. It became, therefore, legitimate plunder for the settlers, who lost no time in dividing the spoil.

Like the renegade of her tribe, Chipeta, in her wanderings, tended to the White River country. There, at least, she would be welcomed and some respect paid to her fallen greatness. She and her husband joined Colorow, and are now with him environed by the military forces which the Governor has dispatched for the protection of the settlers of Garfield county.

Telegraphic advices say that some apprehension is felt for Chipeta's safety. She was in one of the tents which was fired by Sheriff Kendall's party on their first visit to the Indian camp, and she has not been seen since. It is not at all likely that she has been harmed. She has been compelled to practically take to the bushes.

Chipeta is growing old. She must be in the neighborhood of 50. Colorow was once her enemy, as he was the enemy of the peace-loving Ouray; but when her white friends turned on her she sought straits in life where she could find friends. It is not now believed that she entertains a warlike spirit toward the whites, but being with Colorow, she is in bad company. Once the Queen of the Nation, she is now leading the life of a common squaw.—[Denver Republican.

LADY BUGS.

Why They are So Called and Something About Them.

Dozens of boys and girls can tell you what a lady-bug (or lady-bird, as they call it in England), looks like, and there are very few who cannot and do not repeat the old rhyme:

"Lady-bug, lady-bug fly away home;
Your house is on fire, your children will burn," whenever they see one; but there are not many, if any, who know why the bug is called lady-bug, or why her house is always supposed to be on fire.

Lady-bugs are supposed to appear suddenly on St. Barnaby's Day (the 11th of June), and for that reason were first called St. Barnaby's bees. Now, St. Barnaby was noted for his good works, and for administering comfort to the afflicted, and it was thought that he sent the bugs, and taught them to be useful to man by destroying plant lice and other insects that fed upon trees and flowering shrubs.

After some time they became known as Bishop Barbaby's bee, as it was discovered that there was a likeness in the insect's garb to the full-dress gown of the Oxford doctor of divinity, which is scarlet, with black velvet sleeves, and I have no doubt that there is many a little English girl who remembers the old rhyme:

"Bishop, Bishop Barnabee,
Tell me when your wedding be,
If it be to-morrow day,
Take your wings and fly away."

In the winter months lady-bugs congregate by thousands in barns, and if you will look in the cracks along the beams you will find them tucked away for their long slumber during the cold weather.

I believe it is not known or has been forgotten why they are connected with cows and burning buildings, but that they were is proven by the numerous rhymes that are still sung by the boys and girls of the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, where they are called cush-cow-ladies, and in the North Riding one of the children's songs says:

"Dandy-cow, dandy-cow, ride away home;
Thy house is burnt and thy bairns are tean,
And if thou means to save thy bairns,
Take thy wings and flee aways."

There the most mischievous child is afraid to hurt a dandy-cow, for it is thought very bad luck.

In other places they are known as "Our laby-bird," evidently called after the Virgin Mary; also, golden-bug, May-bug, blessed bee, golden-knap, lady-cow, barn-bee, cushcow-ladies and dandy-cows.

One of the old rhymes says:

"Lady-bug, lady-bug, sigh thy way home:
Thy house is on fire, thy children all roam,
Except little Nan, who sits in her pan,
Weaving gold lace as fast as she can.
Then fly to the east and fly to the west—
Fly to those that I love best."

There are several species of these little bugs, and all of them are said to be useful in destroying insects so small that the human eye cannot see them. One variety, found very far South, is said to entirely destroy a scale insect that feeds upon the orange tree.—Philadelphia Times.

A Japanese Pygmalion and Galatea.

The piece was Pygmalion and Galatea, the star enacting "Pygmalion", who received on her first entrance no sort of recognition. Not borrowed this, from Mr. Gilbert's comedy, or even from the Greek. The legend here delineated is one of the most favorite in Japan, and dates back to the twilight of fable. The hero is a left-handed carpenter, who finds himself impelled by mystic influence to occupy his time in fashioning a wooden figure instead of applying himself to the more useful construction of household furniture. Result: poverty, hunger, a starving wife with acid tongue; for it is obvious that a man without means or patron should not turn artist. Now all the best Japanese sculpture is carved in wood, and it is not infrequently arrayed in silk or crape, fitted with real hair. Hence, the statue which in this instance occupies a wooden case like a sentry box can be closely modeled on the real article. No trouble here as to representing marble warmed to life. Illusion being permissible, the actress gave an accurate and very funny imitation of a . All of her movements were those of an automaton. Her method of coming to life was full of humor, for the artificial limbs unstiffened gradually with jerks and twists, as if the joints required greasing; and in the most impassioned love scenes between herself and her creator her mechanism would suddenly go wrong, in a manner as ludicrous as provoking. By and by, yielding to his wife's complaints and the remonstrances of Chorus, the carpenter decided to saw off the head of his statue. At this point, in obedience to some mysterious and unfortunate canon, illusion—hitherto admirably sustained—was suddenly dropped. The hero went through a pantomine of sawing, two supers held up a cloth before the lady, who walked out, while a third produced a wooden head, after gazing on which the carpenter went raving mad. And then superior histrionic skill gave way to childish buffoonery. The premier subjet "carpentered" the performers, planing one, sawing another, chiseling a third, dancing and cutting capers the while amid a a shower of missiles, as in the spill and pelt of Christmastide.—[Murray's Magazine.

A Rare Manuscript.

A unique manuscript has been sold at the Hotel Drouot, in Paris, for 5500 francs. It is a manuscript of eight written pages, by the first Napoleon, giving a history of the Island of Corsica, and written by him at Ajaccio, in 1790. There is much in it which shows that the future Emperor was then a disciple of Robespierre, of whom he speaks with the fervor of an enthusiast. The language is somewhat involved and obscure, and the orthography that of an uneducated person, and it altogether bears evidence of the production of a brain which thought too rapidly for the hand which set down the ideas. The erasures are frequent and the changes many, but the manuscript is a sincere reflection of his mind in the year 1790. He dwells at length on the degradation of the governed classess all over Europe, and insists that French armies possessing the genius of liberty shall ultimately overthrow and dominate the existing Powers.

FAVORED BY FORTUNE.

A Hotel Porter Falls Heir to a Large Estate.

The biggest sensation the little town of Gloucester has known for many years was sprung on its quiet inhabitants to-day in the announcement that John Anderson, a resident of the place, had received a cable dispatch from Copenhagen that his mother had just died, leaving him heir to an estate of $300,000. Gloucester is a fishing town down the Delaware with a reputation for shad that is not rivaled by that of any other place in the East. During the shad season it is the Mecca of lovers of that toothsome fish, and Landlord Thompson's planked-shad dinners are a fond memory in the minds of hosts of epicures who made frequent trips down the river during the early months of the present summer.

With the visitors at Thompson's there was no more popular attache of the place than a quiet, good-looking, well-behaved young fellow named John Anderson. He is the same man who to-day received the startling dispatch that has set many a tongue in Gloucester wagging and led to his instantaneous resignation of the place he has held since last spring. Two hours after he got the telegram he was spinning over to New York, where he intends to take steerage passage in a steamer that leaves for Europe to-morrow.

Anderson was drawing six beers when a telegraph messenger walked into the bar-room of Thompson's this morning and handed him a dispatch. He was in such a hurry that he got ex-Mayor Wyncoop, who was leaning against the bar, to read it to him. As soon as he heard the last word he let the six glasses fall with a crash, leaped over the bar and executed a wild dance. Then he hurried to his employer and resigned. The people of Gloucester and those who went from Philadelphia to escape the drought of a Sunday in Philadelphia that began with Mayor Fitler's strict enforcement of the Sunday law, never looked on Anderson as a man with any romance in him. Yet he was full of romance. The steady-looking, mild-mannered young man, who talked commonplace with a Teutonic accent, himself so short in stature that the high bar hid all but his Danish blue eyes and his fair hair and beard, said little of his past history and nothing of the wealth which he knew must, in the natural course of things, come to himself.

Boniface Thompson, as the summer went on, looked once in a while at his bartender, whom he engaged only two months ago, and thought that he had got a pretty steady-going man. Once in a while Anderson would grow communicative and tell his employer a little of his past. A Dane by birth, Anderson's father was educated in Paris and gained a commission in the French army. He followed the fortunes of Napoleon III and was rewarded for his service by being made a Brigadier in the Imperial army. Young Anderson's education had been military, and he was a Lieutenant of Cavalry when the Franco-Prussian war broke out. Both father and son were in several battles of that disastrous war, and when the Emperor left France forever they returned to Copenhagen.

Young Anderson grew restive in his native land. He said little of the reasons which sent him from luxury at home to struggles abroad, but he let it be inferred that political reasons drove him from home. He worked, as he says, at anything he could get when he reached America. He has tended bar, shoveled snow, helped at laying the Steventh avenue conduit for the electrical subway in New York, rafted logs on the Deleware, drove mules on the Erie canal, served a milk route in Jersey City, handled freight a little during the big strike of last spring, was a "supe," with half a dozen lines to speak, in a spectacular show, was a conductor on a Brooklyn street-car, went to Chicago and helped load some of Phil Armour's refrigerator cars, and worked at no end of other employments. He claims to be a member of the family made noted by simple Hans Anderson and his genial tale of Danish folk-lore.—[Philadelphia correspondent Globe-Democrat.

A Faithful Slave.

On August 23rd the body of Uncle Billy Toombs was buried in the colored cemetery here in the presence of a large number of the best white citizens, as well as of almost the entire colored population. Prominent among those present and taking personal charge of the arrangements were the members of the family of the late General Robert Toombs. Uncle Billy was born eighty-two years ago, the slave of Major Toombs, and was eleven years of age when the Major's son Robert was born. Billy was assigned to duty as the boy in waiting to the baby, and took great interest in his development.

When young Mr. Toombs grew up and married, his father presented him with Billy, and ever after the closest friendship existed between the two. Billy accompanied his master to Washington, to the fashionable watering places and to Europe. In this way he became familiar with many distinguished people. In all this change of life, however, Billy never lost his head, but was polite and faithful to his master's interests. Before the war he had an intense hatred for the abolitionists, refusing to countenance them in any way. When the war was over and the Toombs family had gathered once more at the old family mansion, Billy returned there too as well as the rest.

"You are free now," said General Toombs to him.

"I'll never be free from old master," said he, "but I will follow you all my life."

To this General Toobms replied: "Very well, then, I'll take care of you."

Even after this Billy was the most devoted of servants, looking after his master's interests as though they were his own. When General Toombs died, two years ago, he left full provision for Billy's maintenauce, and no mourner at the General's grave shed warmer tears than did the faithful old African who lingered there long after the crowds had melted away. Uncle Billy will be remembered as the only African who absolutely refused to take his freedom.—[Washington (Ga.) Cor. Globe-Democrat.

Billousness.

We have tested its virtues, personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Billousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. We tried forty other remedies before Simmons Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief; the Regulator not only relieved but cured us.—H. H. JONES, Ed. Telegraph and Messenger, Macon, Ga.

Ladies will find relief from headache, costiveness, swimming in the head, colic, sour stomach, restlessness, indigestion, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pains in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency by taking Simmons Liver Regulator. It is not unpleasant, is purely vegetable, and is not injurious to the most delicate constitution.

The RAYMOND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY having purchased 347 acres of the well-known, highly-improved and cultivated tract, now offers for sale its DIVISION NO. 1, with long frontages on EAIR OAKS AVENUE and MISSION STREET, large lots averaging 60x180 feet; streets from 50 to 80 feet wide, and to be graded, piped and planted in trees at the expense of the company. Each lot to have connection laid to main pipes, and to have FREE one share of stock in the MARENGO WATER COMPANY, thus insuring an abundant supply of pure water for irrigation and domestic use.

Easy and frequent communication now had with Los Angeles by the L. A. & S. G. V R. R., with station at northwest corner of tract. The new line of the Southern Pacific Co., from the new town of Ramona northward, is to run through the middle of the tract, and a first-class station is to be established at the reservoir in front of the Raymond Hotel.

GARFIELD AVENUE, running from Alhambra Station on the S. P. R. R. to Raymond Station on the L. A. & S. G. V. R. R., is 70 feet wide through the east side of this tract, and will soon have a line of street cars in operation its entire length.
